TROOPS SHOOT LOOTERS

First Direct News from Dayton; Cincinnati in New Flood Peril

MILITANT IS BARRED IN BOSTON

Miss Florence Weid Ward, a militant English suffragette and lieutenant of Mrs. Evangeline Pankhurst, was held in the pen at the Boston immigration station today as an undesirable immigrant. She has appealed to Secretary Wilson of the Department of Interior.

Miss Ward was given a hearing today and was then debarred from the United States on the ground that when she took part in a window smashing crusade in London and was sent to jail her offences were criminal.

The suffragette claims that her offences against the English government were purely political and that her acts did not show moral terpitude.

Miss Ward gave James A. Sullivan, Martin J. Leonard and W. A. West, sitting as the board of immigration, a busy hour today.

She gloried in her jail sentences. She boasted of having served four months in Holloway jail. She declared that she had taken part in the hunger strike and that her health was broken as a consequence.

"You don't expect such things would be tolerated here, do you?" she was asked.

"No, I don't suppose so," she replied. "But then, there was the Boston Tea Party."

And she looked out of the window and no State street to the scene of that historic event.

Miss Ward was taken to the station yesterday, by Inspector W. H. Nitz. She came over in the second cabin of the Ivernia. She is going to visit the family of Professor J. F. Mason of Cornell University.

DRIFTING BARGE SAVED BY SENECA

The revenue cutter Seneca reports by wireless that twenty miles off Block Island she picked up the drifting barge Lancaster with Captain West of Providence and four men aboard. The Lancaster broke adrift from the lake steamer William Chisholm in a gale two days ago. She was found within five miles of the spot where she broke away.

Irish Flag Waves on City Hall Annex, for a Little While

A large Irish flag that had been raised on the top of the steel framework of the new City Hall Annex was taken down and replaced by an American flag after many complaints had been made to the Mayor's office and to Captain Sullivan of Station 2. Colonel Dick Field, Mayor Fitzgerald's secretary, told Patrolman Lahey to investigate and to call the attention of Wejis Brothers, the contractors, to Section 6, Chapter 207, of the Revised Laws, which forbids the raising of any foreign flag on a public building.

An employe of the contractor said the flag was raised for a joke and it was the intention to immediately replace it with an American flag.

$12,500 VERDICT FOR INJURY THAT BROKE WINDPIPE

Peter Peterson of Roxbury has received a verdict of $12,500 against William H. Nevins of Springfield, doing business under the name of the Springfield Printing & Binding Company, for injuries he received January 24, 1910, when a freight elevator struck him, fracturing his windpipe. He was in a Springfield hospital five months and unable to talk.

He can talk now, but a tube is removed every night by a doctor and a new one put in. If the tube were left out two and a half minutes, it is said, Peterson would die of strangulation.

"BODY" IN WOODS JUST SLEEPING OUT OF DOORS

"There's a body of a murdered man in Thompsonville woods," cried an excited voice over the telephone to Chief of Police Fred Mitchell of Newton today. The chief in the patrol wagon with two other officers hastened to the scene. T.. "body" was lying in a growth of scrub oak.

As they picked it up the man opened his eyes and exclaimed: "What are doing?"

An hour later Martin Jennings of Village street, Roslindale was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness. He said he was just sleeping out of doors.

CHANGE IN CARS ON HUNTINGTON AVENUE

Beginning at 8:30 tonight and continuing until 6 o'clock tomorrow morning, all inward bound Huntington avenue cars will be diverted by way of Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street. This diversion is made necessary on account of track construction work on Huntington avenue at Exeter street. The outward-bound Huntington avenue cars will run on their regular routes. The company will maintain a shuttle service on the inward-bound track between Massachusetts avenue and Exeter street.

NICHOLAS REPORTED AS SLAIN

ROME, March 29.—A telegram received today from Cettinje reports the death of King Nicholas of Montenegro. It stated that, while no official confirmation of the report could be received from the Montenegrin government, many rumors were current there. One of these was that the King had been assassinated, while another had it that Nicholas succumbed to illness brought on by exposure.

A week ago, when Austria-Hungary delivered her send-ultimatum that the siege of Scutari must be lifted and was backed up by the powers, King Nicholas was quoted as saying that he would "enter Scutari or not return alive to Cettinje."

LONDON, March 29.—Sir Roger Parkington, the Montenegrin Consul-General in London, said today that he had unofficially heard of King Nicholas' death, but had received no official confirmation of the report.

BULGARIANS PIERCE LINES; NOW MARCH ON CONSTANTINOPLE

LONDON, March 29.—The Bulgarian troops pierced the Tchataldja lines in the neighborhood of Lake Derkos, on the Black Sea, today, and are pushing forward victoriously on Constantinople, according to a central news dispatch from Sofia.

The Sultan wept bitterly when told of the general situation in Turkey, including the wrecking of the holy places in Adrianople, which the Moslems feared might be profaned.

All accounts reaching here agree that the Turks have suffered a severe defeat at Tchataldja. Some of the correspondents placed the Turkish losses as high as 2,000 killed and 7,500 wounded.

Before surrendering Adrianople, the Turks set fire to the grain store, but overlooked the flour depot, the contents of which are being distributed among the poor.

SALEM MEETING TO RAISE RELIEF FUND

Monday night there will be a mass meeting at Hsynes Memorial, in the Y. M. C. A. building, Salem, in the interests of the flood sufferers of the West. It will be a public meeting, and a collection will be taken. All the pastors have been requested to announce this meeting from their pulpits tomorrow. Already $200 has been contributed, and many large amounts have been promised. At a meeting at the Mayor's office a committee was appointed and the relief fund started.

DANVERS CHIEF OF POLICE RESIGNS

Chief of Police Merrill of Danvers has handed in his resignation, after twelve years' service. Last Monday night at the town meeting a motion to place the office of chief of police under civil service was defeated, 1,000 to 171. At this meeting a new Board of Selectmen was elected, and it was said a majority of the board was opposed to the present chief.

COUNSEL READY FOR HEARING

While Mrs. Jennie May Eaton waits in the Plymouth Jail, charged with killing her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, by poison, her counsel and the attorneys for the State are today busy preparing for the legal battle that will be waged with her life as the stake.

District Attorney Barker has announced that the mental condition of Mrs. Eaton will be carefully examined. Her attorneys, W. A. Morse and F. J. Geogan, are determined no alienists shall be allowed to examine Mrs. Eaton.

While the defence has asked for two weeks in which to prepare its attack on the indictment, the District Attorney may bring various legal actions to combat the two lawyers. The defence is ready for any move.

The defence hopes to be able to uncover the State's prosecution. Mrs. Eaton's lawyers decline to say what action they will take should the District Attorney apply for the appointment of a lunacy commission. They intimate they may demand a public hearing on the issue.

It is known the police have not yet been able to find where the poison was purchased which the State charges Mrs. Eaton used.

The arrest of Mrs. Eaton left many details unfinished which the prosecution is now expected to seek to clear away.

Further investigation is said to be likely to keep Mrs. Eaton in jail a considerable time before any further legal action is taken by the prosecution.

"People have been asking me where the Admiral's income went to," said James Frosty, the aged neighbor of the Eatons. "I know where part of it went. He made an allowance of $70 a month to June Keyes, his elder step-daughter, even after she was married. Then Mrs. Eaton made frequent trips and there were old debts he was paying off."

"Mother has nothing to fear. She will be with us soon. And how happy I will be." This is the message that Dorothy Ainsworth Eaton gave out today through the AMERICAN from the Eaton home.

The younger stepdaughter of the late Admiral smiled in a most confident manner. She said her mother did not fear the outcome of a trial, and expected that she would return home, free, in the end.

Dorothy would not comment upon the report that her sister, Mrs. June Keyes, had been receiving $70 a month from her mother since her marriage a few months ago.

QUINCY FIRE ENGINE KILLING INVESTIGATED

Mayor Stone of Quincy has called for an investigation into the death of Willard Nightingale, who was killed by the auto chemical of the fire department while responding to an alarm in Independence avenue. The machine was driven by Richard Williams and Chief Ernest Litchfield was in the car when it struck Willard. Mayor Stone told Chief Darrell he wanted a full report. The Mayor has issued an order stating that in the future no city machine shall exceed a speed of twenty miles an hour.

WOODSMAN ROBBED, TWO MEN ARE HELD

Neal Harkins, twenty, of Decatur street, and Walter J. Dennis, twenty-one, of Bunker Hill street, both of Charlestown, appeared in the Municipal Court charged with robbery and were each held in $2,000. The victim is John Martin of Union, N. H., who arrived in Boston after a Winter in the woods with about $160. He met them at the North Station. He says that he was beaten and robbed.

SURVIVORS IN TERROR AT DAYTON

MIAMI CITY, O., March 29.—Fifty thousand survivors of Dayton's flood passed a night of terror because of constant shooting by militia guards.

Fifty shots were fired between midnight and 3 o'clock this morning within hearing of the main hospital quarters in the National Cash Register Building.

Civil workers in the center of the town, where efforts are being made to clear away the debris, report that five looters were shot after midnight. One of these was a negro who had succeeded in entering a Madison street house, where he was seen by a militiaman and shot in the act of looting. It is declared that only one of five men shot is dead.

Orders have been issued to the soldiers to inflict summary execution on corpse robbers. These ghouls have been sneaking through down-town and residential sections like hyenas after a battle.

At Columbus—Soldiers shot and killed a looter here before the daylight. The fatal shot is believed to have been fired by Private Kimell of the Marysville Company. The killing occurred just south of the Baltimore & Ohio tracks, near Mound and Centre streets, on the west side. The looter's body dropped into the water and was not recovered.

At Zanesville the situation is serious. Appeal has been made to the Adjutant General's office for 300 militia men to war on looters and to aid in relief work.

CINCINNATI NEAR FLOOD CRISIS; SIXTY BLOCKS IN WATER

FIRST BASEBALL VICTIM SAVED BY OPERATION

Joseph Harrington, a fifteen-year-old Brookline High School boy, whose skull was fractured in Greater Boston's first baseball accident of the season by a bat slipping from another boy's hands as the latter swung at a ball, was reported at the Massachusetts General Hospital as being in a fair way to recover.

An operation, performed as soon as possible after the accident, is believed to have saved young Harrington's life.

The boy, who is well known as a swimmer, was standing near home plate watching the Brookline High Alumni game. Alex Sutherland, a left-handed batter, swung for a foul tip. The bat left his hands, striking Harrington's forehead.

CALL IS ISSUED TO FIRST CORPS CADETS FOR FLOOD RELIEF

Lieutenant-Colonel Franklin L. Joy of the First Corps Cadets today issued a call for clothing for the flood sufferers in the West. His call was addressed to the active, honorary, veteran, past and fine members of the Corps.

Articles specially desired are: Suits (coats, trousers and vests), separate coats, trousers or vests, overcoats, underdrawers and shirts, stockings and shoes. Clothing should be free from moths, and, if possible, should be hung out doors in the bright sunlight for a few hours before being sent. Shoes should be stoutly tied together in pairs. All packages, unless personally delivered, should be addressed to the Quartermaster, Cadet Armory, Columbus avenue and Ferdinand street, and charges prepaid.

"In One Hour I Learned to Play the Piano at Home"

"Little Wireless Phones"

For the ears that will cause you to

HEAR

What eye glasses are to failing sight, our invisible ear drums are to lost or failing hearing. Just as simple and common sense and on the same principle. For they magnify sound as glasses magnify sight. They are really little wireless telephone receivers, safe and comfortable, which fit into orifice of the ears and are invisible. They can be removed or inserted in a moment and worn for weeks at a time, for they are skillfully arranged for perfect ventilation and antisepticism. These little wireless 'phones make it easy to hear every sound distinctly, just as correct eye glasses make it easy to read fine print. Among the nearly 80,000 people whom they have enabled to hear perfectly there has been every condition of deafness or defective hearing. No matter what the cause or how long standing the case, the testimonials sent us show almost marvelous results.

Common-Sense Ear Drums

have proved to be a real blessing—that is, to those afflicted with deafness or defective hearing. Go discover the secret of their success in your own deserving case and to be relieved of my deafness after physicians had repeatedly failed.

It is certainly worth your while to investigate. Before you proceed any further drop me line. I want to send you free of charge my book on deafness and many proofs, evidence to prove to you that I am entirely worthy of your confidence. Why not write me today.

MYRTLE WILDE, girl of twelve, who gives up candy to help flood relief work.

Cambridge Girl Gives Up Candy to Aid American Fund

Twelve-year-old Myrtle Wilde of Cambridge today sent the AMERICAN $1 for the fund the AMERICAN is raising for the relief of the people in the western flood area.

In order to contribute to the fund to help the flood sufferers, little Miss Wilde is denying herself candy—a big self-denial for a school girl.

Myrtle Wilde lives at No. 357 Winisor street, in the University City. In sending her contribution she wrote:

Editor AMERICAN:

Enclose find $1 to start a relief fund for the people who have lost their homes in the flood.

I am a little girl, twelve years old. I read about the poor people out West, so instead of spending my money for candy I will send it to you, hoping you will induce through your paper other people to help.

Yours very truly,
MYRTLE WILDE.

Wellesley Poet Sings Baseball as New College Sport

The great American pastime, baseball, has invaded the sacred precincts of Wellesley College. No longer are fudge parties and dances in order. Among the athletically inclined baseball is the one topic of conversation. Some optimistic young women have even dreamed of a team which might meet nines from other girls' schools.

Some of the students have burst into poesy in defense of their favorite sport. The following effusion appeared in a recent number of the Wellesley College News:

THE LATEST.

Baseball is the little craze
That Wellesley likes so well,
The way our pass is formally
Is past my power to tell.

With Parsony up at the bat,
And Beebe on first base,
And Mosher doing outfield work,
And Cameron on base,

To tell the varied prowess of
The varied, noble teams,
The local color of their speech
In fair second our dreams,

Why College Hall can catch a fly
As sure as anything,
The Hill and Stone can strike her out
With quite a mowing swing.

And everywhere you chance to go,
In campus, or in hall,
The question isn't, "Does she row?"
But, "Does she play baseball?"

AMERICAN OPENS BUREAUS TO HELP FLOOD SUFFERERS

The Boston AMERICAN is opening Relief Bureaus here and in Dayton and the stricken area.

Every person in Boston willing to contribute relief of any kind—food, medicine, clothing, shoes or other useful articles, is invited to prepare all such donations for delivery.

In this respect the AMERICAN places itself at the disposal of the public officials of the stricken district and the merchants of Boston.

As quickly as supplies are contributed they will be rushed to the Field Branches of The Relief Bureau and dispensed among the needy. The AMERICAN desires only new articles of wearing apparel because of the great difficulties attendant upon the handling of old clothing.

Communicate with The Boston AMERICAN Relief Bureau, No. 5 Winthrop square.

AMERICAN WILL SEND SUPPLIES TO SUFFERERS

The Boston AMERICAN and the other Hearst newspapers have opened relief bureaus in the stricken flood district of the West and have begun the work of relieving the distressed.

William Randolph Hearst has subscribed $1,000 to the fund being raised by his papers, and scores of other contributions have been sent in to the AMERICAN and to the offices of the papers in New York, Atlanta, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Every person in Boston willing to contribute relief of any kind; food, medicine, clothing, shoes, or other useful articles, is invited to prepare such donations for delivery.

To distribute this relief to the unfortunate persons in the afflicted district the AMERICAN places itself at the disposal of the public officials of the flooded district and the people of Boston.

As quickly as supplies are contributed they will be rushed to the field branches of the relief bureau and dispensed among the needy. Because of the great difficulty attendant on handling old clothing the flood sufferers can use only new wearing apparel.

Communications to the Boston AMERICAN Relief Bureau, No. 5 Winthrop street, will receive prompt attention.

BAY STATE SENDS $100,000 TO RELIEVE FLOOD SUFFERERS

Massachusetts has already responded to the appeal of the flood sufferers of Ohio and Indiana by subscription of nearly $100,000.

Governor Foss has appointed a citizens' committee to see that the funds raised are expended to the greatest possible advantage. Gifts of new clothing and blankets are eagerly solicited by the committee, which comprises Henry Clark, chairman; William D. Sohier, James H. Hustis, Matthew Hale and James J. Phelan.

Mayor Fitzgerald's proposition for a monster theatrical benefit met with cordial response from the local theatrical managers. Detailed arrangements for it have been left in their hands.

Subscriptions to the American Red Cross Western relief fund total $99,356.85, of which amount $40,000 was received yesterday.

Gardiner M. Lane, treasurer of the Massachusetts Red Cross, has received word from Miss Mabel T. Boardman, chairman of the National Relief Board at Washington, that Boston's generosity is fully appreciated. Mr. Lane has also been notified that, owing to the cost of transportation, only new clothing, bedding and clean second-hand goods should be sent to the sufferers.

Governor Cox of Ohio has telegraphed Governor Foss a message of thanks for the aid of Massachusetts. He declared that the property loss in Ohio alone will amount to hundreds of millions of dollars.

"SENTENCE ME NOW," IS PLEA OF "KID CARTER"

Counsel for James Brandon Jennings (Kid Carter), the Everett pugilist, who was found guilty of murder in the second degree in the killing of William H. McPherson in a South End barroom on last New Year's Day by a jury in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court, has filed a bill of exceptions. The case now goes over to April 26.

When the jury, after twelve hours, reported its verdict, Jennings shouted:

"I want to be sentenced now. I do not want to wait another month in jail before I know what is to become of me."

YALE MEN PLAN RECEPTION TO TAFT

NEW HAVEN, Ct. March 29.—Yale undergraduates are planning a parade and reception for Ex-President William H. Taft when he comes to this city Tuesday to take up his work as a Yale professor. At the request of Mr. Taft the city of New Haven has called off a planned reception, but the students say they will carry out their plans any way.

$50,000 FIRE IN ODD FELLOWS HALL AT ATHOL

ATHOL, March 29.—Fire that broke out in the kitchen of the Tully Lodge of Odd Fellows, on the fourth floor of the Millers River National Bank Building early today, caused a loss of $50,000.

The building is a four-story brick structure at the corner of Main and Exchange streets. It was the most expensive business block in the town.

Firemen Fall With Roof.

Ira J. Dower and James Sweeney, two firemen, had a narrow escape from serious injury when they fell into the burning building when the roof on which they were standing caved in.

Both held onto the hose and were hoisted from their perilous positions by ropes. They were severely cut and bruised. Both were able to go to their homes.

The Millers River National Bank and the Athol Savings Bank, both tenants of the building, have opened for business in the parlors of the Pequod House. They are working under the protection of members of Company E of the Second Regiment, M. V. M. of Orange.

All But One Injured.

The occupants of the building and their respective losses were: Athol Savings Bank, $1,500; Tully Lodge of Odd Fellows, $5,000; Arduolous Bros., ice cream parlors, $2,000; Dr. W. G. Bolton, $1,500; Miss Anna McCormick, $500; Athol Co-operative Bank, $500; Attorney A. F. Hamilton, $500; Paige & Farrington, real estate dealers, $500; L. B. Caswell, civil engineer, $500; Attorney W. M. Welch, $1,000; Deputy Sheriff H. S. Goddard, $350; Attorney R. E. Beecher, $500; Attorney Charles Field, $750, and Mrs Jessie Gordon, $750. All are covered by insurance with the exception of Miss McCormick, who suffers a total loss.

The fire was under control after a hard two hours' battle.

FEAR FOR LYNN GIRL, TEACHER IN FLOOD ZONE

MISS GRACE FAULKNER WARD, M. A., of Lynn, professor of history at Oxford College, Oxford, Ohio, who was in the zone swept by the flood. Her relatives fear she may have been lost.

Among those believed to have been lost in the flood in Ohio is Miss Grace Faulkner Ward, M. A., professor of history at Oxford College for Women, near Hamilton, O. Miss Ward is a former Lynn girl, the daughter of Mrs. Christine Bubier of No. 6 New Ocean avenue, Swampscott.

Oxford College is near the river. Since the first news of the storm Mrs. Bubier has received no word from her daughter and is greatly alarmed.

While most of the students and members of the faculty at the college were away on Easter vacations, Miss Ward stayed behind to correct some examination papers.

Miss Ward is a graduate of the Moses Brown preparatory school at Providence and of Smith College and Radcliffe College. She is widely known in Lynn, where she is a member of the Society of Friends.

SPRINGFIELD'S DANGER OVER; RIVER FALLING

SPRINGFIELD, March 29.—The crest of the Connecticut River flood passed Springfield early today, and swept into the State of Connecticut.

In this city the water reached a height of 20 feet, two feet below the record rise.

The flood caused no material damage in this vicinity, so far as could be ascertained. A few cellars in the north end of Springfield were flooded by water, which backed up through sewer manholes. Farm land along the river banks was inundated.

SUFFRAGE COUNSEL HITS G. O. P. PLAN FOR STRAW VOTE

Michael E. Colliney, legislative counsel for the Massachusetts women suffragists, criticises the Republican State Committee's action in indorsing the "straw vote bill" on suffrage. He declared today:

I do not think the Republican machine by any means reflects the sentiment of the Republican members of the Legislature when it states the straw vote bill is a fulfilment of the pledge in the Republican platform of last year. Joseph Walker, candidate of the Republican party for Governor last Fall, testified before the Election Laws Committee that to his mind the platform did not intend a straw vote bill. Mr. Walker helped to draw the plank.

The only fair way to present this question to the people is in the form of the constitutional amendment.

'PHONE STRIKE IS FAVORED BY GIRL OPERATORS

Only the possibilities of a conference with President F. L. Spaulding of the New England Telephone Company, it is believed, can now prevent a general strike of telephone operators in Greater Boston.

The Boston Telephone Operators' Union is reported to be unanimous for a strike, believing that the company is training new girls to take the place of possible strikers. They are determined by the advice of Frank L. Kelley, the international board member, who has been in charge of the situation, and who believes that the company will listen to the girls' grievances.

First International Vice-President G. M. Bugbinastet is on his way to this city, and will take charge of affairs tomorrow. Tonight a joint meeting of the executive boards of all seven Boston Electrical Workers' Unions will be held to make plans for action after the company's refusal of terms.

The Girls' Demands.

The arbitration board will meet tomorrow to arrange details for the conference with the company's officials. The unions have admitted 114 new members within the last twenty-four hours, many of them private and branch exchange operators.

The union has voted to hold special meetings next Friday morning, afternoon and evening to receive the report of its committee. The executive board is given full power to act in the interval if decided steps are considered necessary.

The demands of the union include:

A workday of eight hours, with fifteen minutes' relief every three hours and one hour for lunch.

From September 15 to June 15 each operator will be allowed every third Saturday afternoon off; all Saturday afternoon work shall be paid as for overtime; all hours of work to be so assigned as to abolish the "split trick" and afternoon-evening tricks.

New Wage Schedule.

The wage scale calls for operators first six months, $7; second six months, $8; second year, $9; third year, $10; fourth year, $11; fifth year, $12; authorized senior operators and clerks, $13; supervisors when assigned, $14; supervisors after six months and chief clerks, $15.

Student operators shall be placed on payroll as regular operators not later than four weeks after leaving the school.

A permanent board consisting of six members shall be established, three members representing the company and three members the union, to consider all questions affecting employment put before it by the union or by the company.

NOT SALTS AND PILLS, 'CASCARETS'

If Constipated, Bilious, Headachy, Stomach Sour, get a 10-cent box of Cascarets.

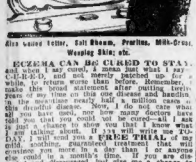
You men and women who can't get feeling right, who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, grasy, disordered stomach, or have headache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

ECZEMA



Also Salted Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk-Crust, Weeping Skin, etc.

ECZEMA CAN BE CURED TO STAY, and when I say cured, I mean just what I say CURED, and not merely patched up for a while, to return sometime later, perhaps worse than before. Hundreds of testimonials after putting twelve cases or more time on time, prove beyond all question the marvelous nearly half a million cases of this dreadful disease. Now, I do not care what all you have used, nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured, I ask is just a chance to show you that I know what I am talking about. I will send you a FREE TRIAL of my wonderful, yet simple, but effective, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will convince you more in a day than a dozen letters could in a month's time. If you are discouraged and discouraged, but give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you had ever thought this world holds for you. Just try it and you will see I am telling you the truth.

THOUSANDS OF FLOOD SURVIVORS FACING STARVATION

FOOD AND SHELTER GREATEST PROBLEMS OF RELIEF MEASURES IN STRICKEN DISTRICTS.

Conditions Today in Flood States

all its relief and civic organizations to cope with.

Every hotel in this city is crowded to its capacity, while every moving van, auto truck and freight and street car has been pressed into service removing families from the flood area. The river reached the stage of 65.9 feet at daybreak and was rising at the rate of one and one-tenth feet an hour. More than sixty city blocks are under water of depth ranging from half a foot to ten feet, suffering, however, has been at a minimum owing to warnings sent out early that the seventy feet would probably be reached before the waters began to recede.

The city was practically cut off from traffic communication with Covington, Ky., early last evening when the approach to the suspension bridge became covered with water at a depth that prevented cars on foot service. A rise of another foot will put the South Covington & Cincinnati street car company's lines, which operate all street cars entering from Kentucky, out of commission, owing to the fact that the power house will become swamped at this stage.

Garrison on Way to Dayton.

The Central bridge leading into Newport was abandoned early last evening.

The water has reached the second floors of a number of business houses along Front street and was half way up on the first floor of several blocks of houses on Second street. Experts estimated today that Cincinnati had enough food supplies to last at least ten days.

Sixty city blocks in Newport and Covington are inundated and thousands are idle.

Secretary of War Garrison, accompanied by Major-General Leonard Wood, chief of staff, arrived here at 4:15 o'clock this morning en route to Dayton.

Upon his advent into this city he received the first telegram from Governor Cox. Immediately upon arriving here Secretary Garrison sent a message to President Wilson notifying him of his arrival and stating that he would press on to Dayton.

The Governor's message was relayed from Washington before he reached the Secretary, and read: "Would suggest that you go to Dayton first. Greatly pleased to have you with us. Have been sending messages all along your route, but apparently the bad condition of the wires has prevented them from reaching you."

Governor Cox also was notified by Secretary Garrison that he would proceed to Dayton with all possible haste.

The local food interfered, however, with the Garrison party, inasmuch as the special train could not be transferred from the Louisville & Nashville tracks to the Cincinnati, Lebanon & Northern, owing to these tracks being submerged.

Consequently a new special train was made up, and it will leave this city about 9:30 o'clock. This will give the secretary time to confer with Mayor Henry T. Hunt and hold a long-distance telephone talk with Governor Cox at Columbus, at 8 o'clock this morning.

Mayor Hunt received the secretary on his arrival here. Secretary Garrison received a letter from the President at Winchester last night stating that the situation at Hamilton, Ohio, was reported serious and answered from here this morning in a telegram stating:

"Shall do all possible to relieve situation at Hamilton."

Flood conditions throughout Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, Eastern Kentucky, Western Pennsylvania, Southern Illinois, New York, Virginia, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Vermont showed improvement today, except in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys.

The total death list is estimated from 800 to 2,000, but these figures are necessarily subject to revision.

The grand property loss, throughout the eleven States hit by high water is estimated from $225,000,000 to $250,000,000.

Six hundred thousand persons at least are homeless. Secretary of War Garrison arrived in Cincinnati today en route for Dayton. Governor Cox telegraphed from Columbus that he would meet Secretary Garrison and General Leonard Wood, United States Army, in Dayton.

Thousands of flood sufferers are suffering from illness brought on by exposure. Relief funds for the flood sufferers in Ohio alone totalled over $1,000,000 today. Special flood services will be held in churches throughout the country tomorrow.

Relief work is being rushed at top speed in all parts of the flood area. The story by States as told in dispatches from scattered points in the flood zone follows:

OHIO.

DAYTON—Loss of life estimated at from 500 to 1,000. Damage to property, $30,000,000. Over 30,000 persons returned today to ruined homes. Relief work being rushed. Soldiers and volunteers clearing away the flood wreckage. Fifteen thousand persons are homeless. Food and clothing being distributed among refugees. The city virtually clear of water.

COLUMBUS—Dead estimated at least 200; fifty-six bodies had been recovered up to 9:30 and twenty-seven were identified. Property loss estimated at from $15,000,000 to $30,000,000. Supply of meat has given out and the people are living on bread and canned foods. Forty thousand people are homeless. The Scioto River cut a new channel through the west side and washed away many houses. Cold weather prevails. The health authorities have pressed hundreds of volunteers into service to scatter disinfectants and prevent an epidemic.

ZANESVILLE—Six known dead. Many have lost their reason, and are unable to comprehend that the flood has passed and they are safe.

Weather Bitter Cold.

The weather is bitter cold, but the rain has ceased to fall. Thousands of sufferers who have spent two nights marooned in buildings without light, heat or food, last night slept in warm beds.

Secretary of War Garrison and his staff are expected here today to take complete charge of the situation. Sanitary engineers and doctors of the State Board of Health are already outlining plans to prevent a malady of sickness.

There have been many heroic figures in the terrible horrors of dread and uncertainty when it seemed that the cold-blooded Hermite those who had escaped the torrents of the flood, but standing out among these is John A. Bell, an employe of the Central Union Telephone Company, who stuck bravely to his wire in the Central Telephone Exchange surrounded by flame and flood and kept in constant touch with Governor Cox at Columbus, informing him of every development and sending out appeals for aid. All Dayton is grateful to this man, whose bravery inspired men and women to renewed hope and endeavor. Steps are being taken to secure for him a Carnegie medal and a life pension.

City Still in Darkness.

The city last night was in darkness except for the lanterns and torches borne by workmen and rescuers.

Carloads of flour have reached here from the Northwest, but cannot be used as the gas has been turned off and there is no way to cook food. Bread and ready cooked foods are needed.

The National Cash Register plant has been turned into an immense relief station and hundreds of refugees are housed there.

Stories of the flood told by survivors are harrowing.

Men tell of seeing women and children borne down the raging torrent while they were unable to render aid. Thrilling rescues were numerous. Many were saved by the use of life lines which were thrown to people floating by on wreckage. These were securely tied about their bodies and willing hands drew them to safety.

The Algonquin Hotel, in the centre of the flood, was inhabited by hundreds of guests and citizens who made their way there. The water rose in the third story, but no suffering resulted, as provisions had been taken to the higher floors with water, before the water began to gain access to the building. They were in plain view of the fire that raged unchecked on Third street and great fear was felt that the flames would sweep the entire business section.

Streets Filled with Wreckage.

The streets are a mass of ruin and wreckage. Parts of houses that have been carried more than a mile are lodged against downtown office buildings. Days will be required to clear the streets and make the downtown section habitable.

By night it is expected a complete list of the dead will be obtainable. While there is no reason to believe the list drowned may mount as high as 500, conservative estimates by police and military authorities place the number at about 175.

BODY HANGS THREE DAYS FROM TREE

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., March 29.—After hanging three days and nights from the limb of a tree, the body of Bert Davenport, aged sixty-nine, who lived with Bernie L. Gleason in West Windham, was found in the woods about a quarter of a mile from Mr. Gleason's house.

FLIES 114 MILES AN HOUR.

TECHNOLOGY'S NEW PLAY.

Fun from the comedy now being staged by the M. I. T. boys for their annual production. It's a hummer and full of bright songs. You'll find a page devoted to it in the CITY LIFE SECTION in SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

FLOOD BULLETINS.

COLUMBUS, O.—Danger from high waters in Ohio shifted today to the Ohio River Valley. Large sections of Ironton and Portsmouth were inundated, and the Ohio was expected to rise above seventy feet.

ALBANY—Danger of a fatal flood is violating of Albany has passed, and the Hudson continues to recede.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio—The Roggie Hotel here collapsed this morning. It is feared many refugees were caught in the falling building and killed by the debris. The water is deep all about the structure and the current is so swift that it is impossible to approach close enough to determine the extent of the disaster.

The Schultze Theatre threatens to fall. Four bodies were recovered from the flood today. The flood, which had reached as far as Sixth street, has receded to Second street, four blocks.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The Ohio continues to rise here, the stage this morning being 41.1 feet, 2.7 feet higher than yesterday.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 29.—The Mississippi River is at a stage of 34.5 feet.

PITTSBURGH, March 29.—The Ohio River fell 1.8 feet since yesterday.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 29.—The flood danger seems to have passed today. No lives were lost, but the property loss may exceed $500,000

PITTSBURGH—Train service is gradually becoming better through Ohio and Indiana.

INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS—The State authorities are fighting hard to prevent the spread of disease which followed the flood here. West Indianapolis is under quarantine. Thousands of volunteers are cleaning up the city. Five deaths from typhoid fever have been reported. The death list at Peru is now thirty. The town is under quarantine because of smallpox. Brookville reports sixteen dead. Fort Wayne reports eight dead. Terre Haute reports four dead. At Evansville the Ohio river is rising.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PITTSBURGH—Dispatches from points in Western Pennsylvania indicate that the total death list will be fifty. The Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela rivers are falling here. Nearly a quarter of a million workmen are idle in the steel-making belt because of high water. The total money loss will be about $15,000,000

WEST VIRGINIA.

The Ohio river is falling at Wheeling after reaching fifty-one feet and doing $2,000,000 damage. Ten deaths are reported here and elsewhere throughout the State. Over half of the business district of Parkersburg was inundated by the highest flood in the history of the city. Five thousand are homeless in and near Parkersburg, but conditions there have begun to improve. The Kanawha River at Charleston was stationary today.

KENTUCKY.

Thousands are still homeless in Eastern Kentucky, but the Big Sandy, West Fork and other rivers in the eastern part of the State are receding. Wires are down and vital statistics cannot be obtained.

VIRGINIA.

The crest of the flood has been reached in Western Virginia, where thousands were driven from their homes.

NEW YORK.

Cold weather stopped floods in the northern part of New York State. Martisi has suffered most, Troy, part of which city was destroyed by fire. The floods are also receding at Albany, Schenectady, Troy, Watervliet and Glens Falls and other points which were hit. The property loss in this State will be about $10,000,000, it is estimated. Terrible suffering from cold weather on the part of the flood refugees is reported and much sickness has resulted.

ILLINOIS.

The Ohio River is rising rapidly at Cairo, and already hundreds of persons living in the lowlands have been driven from their homes. Thousands will be made idle and the levees are threatened. Many points are reported once before this season to the terrific strain of a flood.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The flood in the Connecticut River is receding, but thousands are still idle.

VERMONT.

At White River Junction, one of the most important railroad points in New England, train service is at a standstill from flood. The high water, however, is going down. Many bridges have been washed out.

NEW JERSEY.

The Delaware River, which threatened to break through the levee and flood Trenton, has begun to go down.

AMERICAN MAN SENDS FIRST DIRECT STORY FROM DAYTON

By JAMES A. EASTON.

Special Correspondent of the AMERICAN.

This is the first Dayton flood story sent to a Boston newspaper from its special correspondent.

DAYTON, O., March 29.—A miracle has been wrought in this flood-stricken city. Out of the chaos of fire and sweeping torrents of water Dayton is emerging today with a death list of under 200 souls.

Every portion of the flooded district has now been penetrated by the government life-savers. Trained newspaper men, who have traversed much of the down-town section, are of one opinion—that the loss of life has been greatly overestimated in the early reports, and may not exceed 150.

From $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 property loss has been sustained in damage in business blocks, factories and dwellings.

The property loss by fire will not exceed $1,500,000.

The waters are receding even more rapidly than they rose and the situation is full of hope and good cheer.

Food and clothing is plentiful.

Water is being distilled by engineers and telephone connections are being established.

Comparatively few buildings in which seven thousand people were marooned escaped with comparatively small damage.

Among these are the Arcade, Kuhn's, Callahan Bank Building, Conover Building, Schwind Building, two Cappell Buildings, Mendes Hall, Commercial Building, Rice-Kunler Building and United Brethrens' Publishing Company Building.

The flood had receded sufficiently to allow people to walk from these buildings today.

The fire which started during the flood was centred on both sides in Third street from Jefferson street to St. Clair avenue, sweeping a row of two and three-story structures. The Dayton Gas Light and Coke plant, the Troy-Pearl Laundry and two apartment houses on the West Side were also destroyed. No other serious damage by fire was done.

The three newspapers, the Herald, Journal and News, have suffered no other damage than the inundation of their machinery. The buildings are safe. None are yet able to issue papers.

Ten thousand dollars worth of jewelry, washed away by the flood, was found by a militia man and restored to a Dayton jewelry store.

Every section of Dayton is now under military patrol. Looters will be shot at sight.

Sightseers are being barred from the flood-bound districts. Only those engaged in rescue work are allowed to pass the military lines.

Several relief trains have reached the city with supplies. The trains had to be detoured several times en route, and their progress in reaching here was slow and uncertain.

Respond Nobly to Relief Work.

The feeling today is one of optimism. It is believed that the city will emerge from this calamity greater and grander than ever before, notwithstanding nobly in the work of relief.

Public institutions and private homes alike have thrown open their doors. Faces of the survivors show the mental anguish they have suffered. Perhaps 10,000 persons are homeless.

Women, hollow-eyed and frantic with grief, are searching for their husbands and loved ones. Men with drawn features, careworn and suffering from the horrible experiences which they had passed through, are in many instances as helpless as babies.

Startling Statement Made by Celebrated American Physician

Dr. Vaughan Once Stated That Eighty-Five Per Cent of Deaths in this Country Were From Diseases That Could Have Been Prevented If Sane Precautions Had Been Taken.— Tona Vita, the New Tonic, Is Rated As Being the Best Preventative Medicine.

Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, dean of the Ann Arbor Medical College, once stated that 85 per cent. of the deaths in this country are from preventable diseases.

This is not the fault of medical science: It is the fault of the people themselves. The new mode of living has brought about nervous debility, the twentieth century ailment.

People flee in horror from such scourges as cholera, small-pox, yellow fever and other similar complaints because the effect is so speedy and so apparent; but they have no fear at all of an ailment that is deadly because the ill effects are not so apparent and its dangerous action is slower. As a matter of fact, nervous debility is far more dangerous than any of the diseases above mentioned.

Tona Vita and a similar tonic that is used in Europe are the only medicines that have been really successful in combating nervous debility. Many thousands of people are daily testifying that they have been relieved by Tona Vita.

Some of the symptoms of nervous debility are:—poor appetite; headaches; and lack of vigor and ambition.

This tonic is handled by all druggists in Boston.

YOUR LUNGS

ARE THEY WEAK OR PAINFUL?

Do your lungs ever bleed?
Do you have night sweats?
Have you pains in chest and sides?
Do you spit yellow and black matter?
Are you continually hawking and coughing?
Do you have pains under your shoulder blades?

Those are Regarded Symptoms of Lung Trouble and

CONSUMPTION

You should take immediate steps to check the progress of these symptoms. The longer you allow them to advance and develop, the more deep seated and serious your condition becomes.

We Stand Ready to Prove to You absolutely that the German Treatment, has cured completely and permanently case after case of Consumption (Tuberculosis), Chronic Bronchitis, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes and other lung troubles. Many sufferers who had lost all hope and who had been given up by physicians have been permanently cured by using this wonderful treatment. It is a treatment for the cure of consumption. If your lungs are merely weak and the disease has not yet manifested itself, you can prevent its further progress by building up your lungs and system to their normal strength and capacity. Lung Gargoline has saved advanced consumption in many cases over five years ago and the patients remain strong and in splendid health today.

Boggett is named as executor.

HABEAS CORPUS IS DENIED JOHN WRENN

HALIFAX, N. S., March 29.—The full bench Supreme Court today unanimously dismissed the habeas corpus application of counsel for John Wren, under committal for extradition to New Hampshire for the murder of J. Stewart Hamilton. The basis for the application was irregularity of the deposition taken in New Hampshire. The court held them not sufficient to warrant interference with the warrant of surrender.

A Celebrated Novel by Florence Warden

PART I.

THE next day I went to my "nest." I found Mona sitting among the reeds close to the pond, not far from my "nest," crooning to herself and playing with some sticks and bits of paper. At sight of me the child still along the bank and let herself down into the mud below as if to hide from me.

When the child suddenly disappeared from my sight like that I felt frightened lest she would fall into the water or sink into the soft slime at the edge which she had chosen to retire into and not be able to climb the slippery bank again. So I waiked daintily through the reedy swamp which was her favorite haunt and looked over the bank. She was busy burying in the mud, with the help of two little sticks, the bits of paper she had been playing with, and when I bent down to speak to her she threw herself back with her head almost in the water and began to scream and kick.

This uncalled-for demonstration made me think she knew she was in mischief, and, leaving her for a moment to enjoy herself in her own way, I stooped and picked up one or two pieces of paper which formed her toys. There was writing on them in a hand I knew, and I had not made out a dozen words before I was sure Mona had somehow got hold of a note from Mr. Laurence Reade to me.

Down I jumped in a moment, caring no more now for the mud, into which I sank to my ankles, than Mona herself. I dug up the bits she had buried and took from her very gently those she was still clutching, though my fingers tingled to slap her. I hope it was not revenge that made me carry her indoors to be washed. Then I searched the ground where I had found her and discovered more little bits, and under the seat of my "nest" a torn envelope directed to "Miss Christie."

I ran in and up to my room with my mangled treasure, carefully cleaned the fragments, and, after much labor, at last fitted them into a pretty coherent whole. The note ran as well as I could make out:

Reade's Love Note.

"Dear Miss Christie—I am so anxious about you that I must write. Is it true that"—here there was a piece missing—"an accident, that you are ill, hurt? If you are safe and well, will you pass the park in your walk tomorrow that I may see you and know that you"—another piece missing. "I shall put this on the seat near the pond, where I know you go every evening. Your sincerely,

"LAURENCE RE——."

It was dated "Wednesday," and this was Thursday afternoon; so that it was this morning's walk that he had meant. Oh, if I had only come out here last night and found the letter! I would go past the park tomorrow, but perhaps it would be too late, and he would not expect me there—he would thing that I was too ill to come out.

So the next morning in our walk I took care to pass Goldham Hall, both going and returning; but the first time I saw no one in the park, and the second time to my surprise, I saw Rayner and Mrs. Reade sauntering along together under the trees in a very friendly manner.

The next evening I had to go to tea at Mrs. Manners to take part in a final discussion of the arrangements of the school treat on the following day. Mrs. Manners, who was a very simple, kindly lady, greeted me with rather a perturbed manner and introduced me, half apologetically to the Misses Reade, the elder of whom was stiff for and the younger more awkward than ever as they just touched my hand and dropped it as if it had been something with claws.

Then we 3nd ten, and Mr. Manners made me sit by him. He went out as soon as it was over, and we all went back into the drawing room and wrote numbers on tickets; I forget what they were for, but I remember that there was great confusion because several of the ladies made mistakes so that, while some numbers were left out altogether, there were a great many tickets bearing the same numbers. Mrs. Manners asked me if I should like to cope upstairs and see the things for sale, and the rest of the ladies having seen them many times already. So we went up together, and, while we were looking at them, she said, nervously:

Cross-Examines Governess.

"You have never been in a situation before, have you?"

"No, never before."

"A governess' position has many trials and difficulties."

"I haven't met with many yet. I have been fortunate," said I, smiling.

Mrs. Manners looked at me as if she wanted to ask more than she dared, but she only said:

"Of course some families are pleasanter to live with than others. But in all there are occasions when we must pray for guidance"—and I thought of my resolution to go—"and when we must walk circumspectly"—and I thought of the best way of treating Sarah.

I only answered:

"Yes, Mrs. Manners." very gently.

She seemed pleased by my submission, and said suddenly, as if to herself, after looking at me for a few moments:

"An honest, open face!"—which made me blush—then in a quicker, more practical tone, "you have no father, and have always lived quietly with your mother? Of course you write to her often?"

"Oh, yes."

"So that you can have the benefit of her counsel in any difficulty?"

I hesitated. Nobody ever seemed to think of going to mamma for counsel; we always kept things from her that were likely to disturb her, because she had delicate nerves, and used to go into hysterics if anything went wrong. So I said:

"In any difficulty I should have to think and act for myself, Mrs. Manners, because writing to mamma about it would make her cry. But I have met with no great difficulties in my life, so far."

Then we went downstairs and finished up the evening with music. The two middle-aged ladies sang, in thin, cracked voices, some duets in Italian—passionate love songs, the words of which they did not seem to understand. The elder Miss Reade played a movement of Mozart's "Fantasia" in C minor—but did not recognize it until the end—and the younger a "Galop de Salon," with the loud pedal down all the time. Miss Lane, the attorney's daughter, sang "Little Maid of Arcadee," which Mrs. Manners said she should have liked if the words had not been so silly.

Then I was asked to play, and I chose Schumann's "Arabesque," and they seemed astonished and a little scandalized because I played it by heart. I heard Miss Reade whisper: "I don't like her style. That great difference between forte and piano seems to me an affectation."

While I was playing Mr. Laurence Reade came in to take his sisters home. When I had finished everybody looked at us as he shook hands with me in a rather distant manner, but he managed to press my hand before he let it go, so I did not mind, and everybody listened as he said: "We heard at the hall dreadful reports that you were ill, Miss Christie, and wouldn't be able to come to the school treat."

"Oh, no, I wasn't ill. One of the servants gave me a fright in the night," said I. "I woke up and found her in my room amusing herself by ransacking my things. Then I screamed with all my might, and Mr. Rayner came up and called her out and scolded her."

This explanation was listened to with profound attention by everybody in the room, and I was glad I had an opportunity of giving it, so I felt sure that some rumors must have gone about and it was better they should hear my version of the story. Then Mrs. Manners said she hoped Mr. Reade would not desert them at the last, and he promised he would come and help, but said she must not expect him to sell pewwipers.

"You are going to have a much grander affair than usual, I hear," he ended. "More like a regular bazaar."

And in the hustle of departure he whispered to me:

"Wait, and I'll come back and take you home."

But when I had put on my hat and mantle, and Mrs. Manners had led me down to the drawing room again, to say a few words to me, and I was wondering how I could wait until Mr. Reade kept his promise and returned, I heard a ring and Mr. Rayner's voice in the hall. I started and blushed, and Mrs. Manners stopped to her talk and looked at me very searchingly.

Miss Christie Confused

"Mr. Rayner must have come to fetch you home," she said coldly.

I would not have missed the walk home with Mr. Reade for the world.

"I am afraid so," I stammered.

She looked colder still at my confusion, but there was only one way out of it, so I burst out:

"Oh, Mrs. Manners, Mr. Reade said he would come to fetch me! What shall I do."

"Oh, yes, yes!"

Her manner changed all at once. She put her arms around me and drew me to the French window.

"There, my dear—run out there and wait at the gate at the left. That's the way they always come from the hall. It is a little deception, I am afraid, but there —oh, child, go! He is a good lad."

So I ran swiftly across the lawn in the dusk, afraid of Mr. Rayner's seeing me, and up the path between the laurel hedges which led to the gate. The path curved just at the end, and I heard the gate swing to, but I could not stop myself. And, as Mr. Reade danced around the corner, running ree, I fell against him and then panted out, "I beg your pardon," very much confused. He had caught me by the arm and he did not let me go, but held it very gently, while he said:

"Miss Christie! Pray don't apologize. Where were you running?"

"—I was going home," I stammered in a low voice.

"But that is not the way." He paused —then very softly—"Were you coming to meet me?"

"No," I said, half crying, and disengaging myself.

It was so humiliating to have been caught running to meet Mr. Reade.

"No? I had hoped you were. For I've been running like a racehorse to meet you."

I said nothing.

DARTMOUTH RELAY RUNNERS OUT TO DEFEAT CORNELL

DARTMOUTH MEN HOPE TO BEAT CORNELL TEAM

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.
(Quarter-Mile Champion of the United States and Canada.)

The Dartmouth track team, which has been practicing in the huge indoor gymnasium at Hanover, has started its work on the outdoor oval. Every preparation is being made to whip the two-mile relay team into shape. Strong hopes are held that this team will be able to defeat the fast Cornell aggregation at the coming Penn relay carnival.

This meeting is important, inasmuch as it gives the schools and colleges an opportunity to size up their prospects for the outdoor season. Many of the track stars throughout the country jump into prominence at this meet. It was here last year that Ted Meredith, while running for Mercersburg, came to light by running his quarter of a mile relay in the fast time of fifty seconds. From then onward he improved till he is now one of the greatest track athletes in the world.

Michigan Team to Compete.

This will be the first appearance of the Michigan team in the East. Jimmy Craig, the younger brother of Ralph Craig, the famous Olympic sprinter, will run for this combination. Many who have seen this young athlete in action predict that he will be a worthy successor to Ralph.

Great interest will be attached to the first appearance outdoors of Hen Bowser, the Syracuse sprinter, who is touted as a second Charles Reidpath. Bowser has always ran a hundred-yard race while competing in New England. It is only since attending Syracuse that he has been competing over the 440-yard route.

Cornell will have the services of John Paul Jones as an anchor in the two-mile relay. Jones is traveling faster than ever, which means that he is capable of doing 4m. 5s. for a mile on a good track. Jack Moakley, the Cornell trainer, has taken upon himself the work of giving Jones a special preparation for the coming outdoor season to fit him for all of the mile and half-mile events.

Jones Hard Man to Beat.

Jones should cover the half-mile relay in 1m. 55s. or better, and if Dartmouth wants to defeat the Ithaca aggregation it will have to gain at least twenty yards on the Cornell captain. The Penn games have always been unfortunate as regards the weather, as it has always been raining or very cold. This makes many of the performances very slow.

CATHEDRAL Y. M. C. A. PLANS ROAD RACE

The fifth annual ten-mile open handicap cross-country run of the Cathedral Young Men's Catholic Association will be held on Saturday afternoon, April 12. It will be over the same course as in previous years: Start at clubhouse, Union Park street to Harrison avenue, to Massachusetts avenue, to Columbia road, to Pine Hill avenue, to Morton street and return via same route. Entry blanks may be obtained by applying to the manager at the clubhouse, No. 79 Union Park street.

ROXBURY CLUB TO HOLD BIG DANCE

The Cedar Social Club, which numbers among its members many prominent Roxbury sporting men, will hold its annual dance in Jamaica Hall, Jamaica Plain, on next Monday evening. The floor will be in charge of president William Lodge, Vice President Ralph White and Treasurer John Casper. John Dwyer, Louis Van Court and Russell Watson will act as aides.

How To Darken Gray Hair

By A Specialist.

A very satisfactory preparation which darkens gray hair and acts as a corrective agent for dandruff and other diseases of the scalp can be made at small expense and in your own home by dissolving a small box of Barbo Compound in 7 ounces of water, then adding an ounce of bay rum and a quarter ounce of glycerine. Any drug store can furnish these ingredients. This is to be applied once a week until the hair is sufficiently darkened, then every two weeks to keep the hair soft and glossy and the scalp in a healthy condition. It may be used with equal success in darkening the beard. This is a preparation that gives splendid results, both as a hair darkener and a remedy for all scalp disorders, and is well worthy of a trial. You will find it far superior to the ordinary store preparation and much less expensive.—Advertisement.

Trip to New York for Winners In Title Tourney

The winners in the different classes at the New England Boxing Championships will be more fortunate than any previous winners, because not only will they receive a gold medal, emblematic of the championship of New England, but there is every indication that they will also receive a trip to New York, as Matthew P. Halpin, chairman of the athletic committee of the New York Athletic Club, has written George V. Brown, manager of the New England Boxing Championships, asking if he would select a boy in each class for the tournament to be held in New York on April 23.

The idea is that at this tournament there will be one boy from Boston, one from Philadelphia and two from New York in each class.

Championships close today. Entries received Monday will be accepted. The down-town office for the sale of tickets will open at 10 a. m. on Monday, March 31, at No. 28 School street, Room 39.

QUAKERS ARE EASY FOR THE SENATORS

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Charley Dooin's Phillies were easy picking for the Senators in the opening exhibition game of the home series here, six to two. In spite of the fact that the National leaguers have been in training ten days longer than Washington, and in a much warmer climate, the Senators looked to be in better condition physically, especially the pitchers.

CINCINNATI CALLS OFF SPRING GAMES

CINCINNATI, March 29.—The Cincinnati baseball team, which was to have arrived here next Sunday, has been forced to change its plans, and has cancelled all games with American League teams scheduled to be played here. The team will return to Macon, Ga., or go to Louisville. It is now at Chattanooga.

WALCOTT NO MATCH FOR YOUNG JASPER

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 29.—Joe Ritchie, better known as Young Jasper, stopped Belfield Walcott in the sixth round in a bout that was scheduled for ten rounds. It was Ritchie's fight all the way, with continuous jabs and right crosses. He beat Walcott into such a state that the referee had to stop the bout.

JANVRIN HURT IN GAME WITH THE PIRATES

By L. R. MURDOCH.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 29.—Harold Janvrin, former English High School athlete, who has played such a slashing game with the Red Sox for years, will probably be out of the game ten days or two weeks, as his wrist was hurt by Charley Hall when the "Mad Mexican" tried to catch a man napping in the game with the Pittsburgh Pirates here yesterday.

Janvrin, however, is a game youngster and as he is only a "kid," may surprise the veterans and get back into the game in less time than they expect. The Boston "boy wonder's" injury came at a poor time. He has been playing regularly with the first team and besides getting a great deal of experience, which will be of tremendous value to him in the future, he has been given an opportunity to show Messrs. Stahl and McAleer that he is one of the best recruit players in the big leagues today.

The game yesterday was won by the Pirates by the score of 6 to 5. This makes the series two all. Six games have been played, but two of them ended with the score tied.

The Red Sox players showed good form in their clash with the Pirates and should be in fine condition when the bell sounds for the opening of the league season.

The Red Sox have released Carlstrom to Fall River, Walsh to Worcester and Moseley to Youngstown. They are all likely looking young players and should be back in the big leagues next season.

"Jiggs" Donohue, Famous White Sox First Baseman Dead

CHICAGO, March 29.—John "Jiggs" Donohue, the former first baseman of the Chicago American League baseball club, is dead. He passed away in an insane asylum at Columbus, O., five weeks ago. Mrs. Donohue was notified of her husband's death yesterday. Donohue was termed as the greatest first baseman ever by President Comiskey of the White Sox.

Donohue was one of the most popular players who ever wore a Chicago uniform and is given much credit for the development of Pitcher Ed Walsh. His chief claim to distinction was his marvellous fielding ability.

The player's first big league engagement was under Connie Mack at Milwaukee during the infancy of the American League.

In 1906 he accepted 1,986 chances at first base, a record which has never been equalled in major leagues. "Jiggs" also had the record of the fewest number of chances in a single game. On May 23, at New York, he made one assist. It had never been known in baseball before where a first baseman was not given a chance to make at least one put-out.

"Jiggs" was one of nine brothers, all of who were baseball players. His nickname was derived from his clog dancing.

PILGRIMS SHOW WELL AGAINST TORONTO TEAM

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

MACON, Ga., March 29. — The Pilgrims and the Toronto Club of the International League will clash here again today. A red hot game is expected by "fans" as Kelley's champions are anxious to wipe out the 4 to 2 defeat which the Pilgrims handed out to them yesterday.

Stallings was greatly pleased by the showing of his men in the first game with Toronto. In Atlanta, the Pilgrims failed to give much evidence of big league baseball. The players were slow on the bases, the pitchers were hit hard, while the batters failed to land on the ball at opportune moments of the game.

In the contest with Toronto the players showed a great deal of enthusiasm and kept playing for all they were worth throughout the entire game.

Stallings hopes that the weather will remain clear. His men have experienced but little baseball weather since they came South, and this, of course, has handicapped them in their playing.

Buzzy Beats Mason in Billiard Match; Score 150 to 124

Buzzy won the final block and match from Mason in the three cushion billiard match at the White Bear Billiard Hall. The final score was, Buzzy 150, Mason 124. Buzzy played like a champion in the last match, making a number of reverse English shots along the rail that seemed impossible.

Mason also played a good game, and executed a number of difficult shots, but was unfortunate in being left in hard positions all through the game.

Buzzy made the high run of the game, 6 points. Mason scoring 5.

ATTELL PROVES THE COME BACK FIEND OF RING

By ED. W. SMITH.

How is one going to figure out this Abie Attell boy after what he did to Ollie Kirk in a New York ring the other night. The little California Hebrew has a knack of twisting the dope upside down and inside out and doing the very things that are least expected of him.

In this instance he proves himself the come-back fiend of them all by stopping Kirk easily in three rounds, whereas last November he himself was stopped completely by this same Kirk in six rounds in St. Louis. On that occasion Attell quit cold, and stepping to the ropes told the astonished crowd that he could continue no longer, that youth would be served, that he found himself all in and unable to turn tricks that he used to in the ring, etc., etc., etc.

But this was last November. This is March. Attell got back to New York, and finding finances a bit low evidently made up his mind that the public had forgotten his St. Louis remarks in the four months intervening. And here he is, a full-fledged come-back.

No boxer in the world, and in this one can include the once mighty John L. Sullivan, has been the subject of more stories dealing with the passing of "a once great star" and the "decay of a champion" than this same Attell. To a certainty Abey has been through the game from beginning to end, in every crevice and angle and has seen it from every viewpoint. He has been knocked out, has won several titles, only to lose them right back, has been accused a dozen times of faking, has been barred here, there, everywhere, only to get himself reinstated; has won and lost fortunes at poker, craps and the race track; and, in fact, every known experience of the boxing sport has fallen to the lot of this California champion. But he's here today, and some people are saying he is just as good as ever he was. How are you going to figure him at all, at all?

OLIVER AMES GIRLS TO FORM A NINE

NORTH EASTON, March 29.—Miss Eva Brunnell, girls' instructor at the Oliver Ames High School gymnasium here, is organizing a baseball team among the feminine members of the school, and will try to interest the Brockton and Stoughton High School teams to the extent of playing a series of games this Spring. Nearly all the members of the basketball five played with the baseball team which represented the girls of the Oliver Ames High last season, and a good team will be put on the diamond.

Or did you hail from Galway or Kilfarney?" questioned I.
"I hail from dear old Kischineff," the stranger made reply.

CAMPI 10 TO 8 FAVORITE OVER BURNS

COAST BOY PICKED AS NEXT OPPONENT FOR COULON

VERNON, Cal., March 29.—Great interest has been aroused in the bantamweight bout here this afternoon between Eddie Campi and Frankie Burns. The bout will be held in the open air arena and a big attendance is assured.

Campi rules a 10 to 8 favorite, but the New Jersey boy had a lot of backers in town and the betting was brisk. The boys will go into the battle in the very best of condition for twenty hard rounds, although many predict that the bout will not go the limit.

The boxers finished their training yesterday, but both took light workouts this morning. Much is at stake in the bout, as the winner will be offered bouts that may lead to the championship of the division and each man is out to gain a victory as quickly as possible.

Eddie Campi has been coming along at a rapid clip lately and is one of the most feared boys in the 116-pound class. Campi is fast and clever and able to hit hard, and Burns will have the hardest kind of a job. He is a local boy and has hundreds of followers and all kinds of money ride on him to win today.

Burns has been seen in action on several occasions on the Coast and has made good impressions. Burns is fine condition for the bout and anticipates a victory.

Campi received the only serious reverse in his career several weeks ago when he was bested by "Kid" Williams of Baltimore after twenty rounds of sensational battling. He hopes to win today as he will then be in a position to demand a return engagement with the Eastern whirlwind.

The men have agreed to make 116 pounds. This is one of the chief reasons why many are picking Campi to win. He is naturally small and can make the low weight without sapping his vitality.

Burns, on the other hand, is by right a featherweight. He cannot make 116 pounds and still do himself justice, as he proved when he fought Johnny Coulon at New Orleans. He may vanquish Campi today, but his days in the ring are sure to be shortened by the hard training which he has had to do in order to get down to weight.

TUOHEY SIGNS NEW MAT STAR FOR GO HERE

Marian Plestina, touted by Frank Gotch as a second Mamout, has been secured by George V. Tuohey to appear in one of the bouts of an All-Star wrestling card at the Mechanics building on Monday, April 7. An opponent to meet Plestina has not yet been selected but local wrestling "fans" can be assured that a big surprise is in store for them.

Plestina is training Gotch for his coming match with George Lurich in Kansas City and is in fine shape. Plestina has never before appeared in this city but in Chicago and other western cities where he has worked on the mat he is considered one of the most promising grapplers ever developed.

Word was received by Tuohey today that Gotch is taking his coming match with Lurich more seriously than was at first expected. Although he has always expressed a desire to meet the Russian, now that he has signed for the bout he realizes that he is up against a tough proposition and as a result is doing his utmost to be in the best possible shape. Tuohey has also received a letter stating that Mamout, who left this country when the Turko-Bulgarian war broke out, was shot in the knee and the result is he may never again be able to wrestle. If he should decide to return to the mat he will have lost much of his effectiveness which made Tuohey refer to him as "the greatest wrestler in the world, barring none."

YANKEES' INFIELD GETS WORKOUT

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 29.—An hour of infield practice by the players who make Manager Chance plans on using during the coming championship season featured yesterday's workout by the Yankees. The infield was made up of Chance at first, Chase at second, Dorrick at short and Horsell at third, and, barring accidents between now and April 10, these four men will compose the Yankees' inner defence in the opening game with Washington.

Harvard Football Men to Commence Practice Monday

A meeting of all Harvard men interested in football was held in the Harvard Union last night. R. E. P. Storer, '14, captain of next Fall's team, outlined the plans for Spring practice, which will begin on Soldiers' Field next Monday afternoon.

Regular practice will be held every afternoon at 3:30 for a period of two weeks. It will be light and easy, the principal purpose being to teach the men to handle the ball cleanly.

Coach Leary, '05, and Paul Withington, '10, urged the importance of Spring practice. They will be in charge of the Spring work.

PILGRIMS IN FRONT.

The defensive ability of Ray Skilton and George Bray was the factor that enabled the Pilgrim A. A. seven to defeat the Winnipegs, amateur champions of Canada, 6 to 4, at the Boston Arena, last night.

ON THE INSIDE

By RIGHT CROSS

You are being told that the race in the National League in particular and in the American League to some extent is easier to figure this year because of the number of new managers.

The dopesters blandly announce that the Yankees, for instance, and the Cubs and the Reds and the Cardinals, can be eliminated because they have new clubs and most of them untried.

It is much easier to dope out a newly elected politician than a newly appointed manager. The dope is against Chance not because he is a new manager, but because of the untried material with which he must work, but anything is possible to Evers or Tinker.

It is apparently taken for granted that it takes a manager a year or two to get the ropes onto a new team and make it pull in the right direction.

This dope was chucked into the discard as far back as 1880 and as recently as 1912. That active youngster, Adrian C. Anson, took charge of the old Chicagos in 1880, and came home accompanied by the provisions that same season.

* * *

Jake Stahl was made manager of the Red Sox during the Winter and took the Giants into camp in seven of the worst ball games ever played some eight months later. Although these games were on the blink from an artistic standpoint, the winning of the odd game gave Stahl a world's championship team in his first year as manager.

Loping down the course of baseball history there is plenty more fodder for hope in New York this year.

Fred Clarke, who has had the first division habit consistently, won the pennant for Pittsburgh his first year as manager. In 1899 Hanlon did the same trick for Brooklyn. Think of Brooklyn with a pennant! How times do change.

Clark Griffith was installed as manager of the Chicago team in 1910 and showed his appreciation of the honor by installing a pennant at that park that same year.

If the Peerless Leader should cop the pennant this year he will have hung up a record that will probably stand for a season or two.

It will be the second time that he has won the league championship in his first season as manager.

He did the same stunt with the Cubs in 1906, the same year that Hughey Jennings, as new chief of the Tigers, won the American League pennant.

Thus we give the good old dope another fracture.

In baseball, as in business, the little things that were ignored are now the source of profit. The importance given the pinch-hitter in the great game today is the best indication of this.

In the old days anybody that happened to have a bat went in and hit for the pitcher when it was necessary to take him out, or he hit for himself.

Now no big league manager feels that his string is complete unless he has at least one man on the bench who has one chance in two or three to hit the ball if he is sent up.

CASSIDY TELLS OF VOTE IN HOUSE ON BILL TO COVER VEGETABLE SALES

No. 2148, relative to the sale of fruit.

An interesting debate occured in the House of Representatives yesterday upon a law dealing with the sale of fruits, vegetables and nuts by weight. Mr. Cassidy witnessed the debate and saw the House vote for the measure, in spite of determined opposition by the retailers' interests. He describes the debate today.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

All the pure food bills introduced into the Legislature under my name have now been presented to the committees, and the Committee on Public Health is expected to report on them soon. In the meantime, since the fight will hereafter be in the Legislature, I shall tell from time to time of some of the interesting debates on food matters.

It was a good omen that the House yesterday passed to be engrossed a measure which had been opposed by the retailers. The bill now goes to the Senate for action. The vote in the House was ninety to thirty-one.

The bill in question was House bill vegetables and nuts. It provided that fruits, vegetables or nuts for which a legal weight has been established may be sold also by dry measure, provided that the quantity sold does not fall below the legal weight.

Here is the significance of the bill. Under the present law the products must be sold by weight alone. This is all right for the retailers, who, for instance, can soak their spinach in water and get big weight with a small quantity. But with hucksters and peddlers, who sell principally to the poorer classes, a pair of eates is an added expense, while they can sell by heaping measure much more easily.

The huckster has his place in the market conditions of the day. But the retailer opposed this bill, thus hoping to secure an advantage over the huckster.

Notice that the bill does not abolish the weight standard. It simply provides that if a man wishes he may sell by dry measure, provided he does not fall below the standard of weight.

For instance, a peck of potatoes is fifteen pounds in weight, as I understand the present law. At present, all dealers must sell a fifteen-pound peck, weighing the potatoes. But under the proposed law the dealer could sell a peck of potatoes without weighing them, provided that he is liable under the law if he sells any amount under the legal weight.

The law, therefore, works no hardship on anyone, and serves simply to give the small dealer a chance.

W. J. Sullivan of Boston, in supporting the bill in the House, presented another good argument for it. He said:

"In many cases these hucksters are on the streets, selling, all Winter, with a temperature well below the freezing point. Under those circumstances their scales do not work properly, on account of the cold weather. The result may be a substantial error in weight.

"If they are allowed to sell by dry measure, you may be sure the customer is getting his money's worth. If he sells by weight, weighing his products in the cold of the open air, his scales may cheat without his knowledge."

Mr. Thompson of Plainville argued against the bill, declaring that the weight standard is the only fair standard. This is undoubtedly true. Every food product, almost without exception, should be sold by weight. But this bill maintains the weight standard, while allowing the use of the dry measure also. Therefore, its passage can do no harm and will do much good.

R. F. Sullivan of Boston charged that the present law was put through for the benefit of manufacturers of scales, to force every dealer and every householder to buy a pair. He urged that the new bill should pass.

Mr. Haines of Medford opposed the bill. He made an impressive demonstration by filling a peck measure with potatoes, and then showing that the peck measure would not hold the full legal weight of a peck—fifteen pounds. Mr. Haines missed the point of the bill, however, which provides that a dealer, even though he use dry measure, must obey the weight standard also.

Smith of Gloucester and Mr. Stone of Everett were the last speakers in the debate. Then it passed by a rising vote. An attempt to secure a roll-call failed, and the bill is in the hands of the Senate for action.

The bill is a good one—fair to the small dealer as well as to the large, and fair also to the consumer. I believe it should pass.

PISTOL DUEL WITH BURGLAR AT WELLESLEY

The Chestnut Woods section of Wellesley was terrorised early today by a burglar who broke into two homes and exchanged shots with Eugene George of Brook Road, who shot at him while he was escaping from the George home.

In his flight through the woods the burglar dropped about $100 worth of solid silverware he had stolen from the George home. He also made an unsuccessful attempt earlier in the morning to enter the home of Joseph Schafer on Washington street.

A. E. George, who owns the Hegmar Kennels, was awakened early by the restless actions of one of his dogs. Soon he heard a crash downstairs in the dining room.

He ran to his bedroom window and saw the burglar running from the house.

On the silver recovered Mr. George found file marks. From the methods used by the burglar to gain an entrance, Mr. George is of the opinion he was a professional.

Earlier in the day the burglar, who is described as a young man, gained entrance to the home of Irving Bowman on Washington street, where he cleaned out the refrigerator.

Mr. George and his son scoured the surrounding section in a carriage, but found no trace of the burglar. They met a milkman from whom the burglar had secured a glass of milk, and whom he told he had come near being shot.

BRANDEGEES ON SEA TODAY; FLEE BLACK HAND

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brandegee of Faulkner Farm, Brookline, fled to Europe today from the unknown Black Handers who have been threatening their lives and home.

They were among the passengers on the liner Berlin that sailed from New York for the Mediterranean today. They slipped away from Faulkner Farm in an automobile last evening under cover of the darkness.

Their machine was guarded by two detectives from the Wood-Morgan Detective Agency, who have been watching the Brandegee estate ever since the receipt of the last Black Hand letter, several days ago.

Mrs. Brandegee, whose nerves have been seriously affected, had to be assisted into the machine by the physician who has been attending her. She was cheered, however, by the realization she was going to leave the scene of her troubles behind her for a long sea voyage and several delightful months on the Continent.

The Brandegee party were driven to the Back Bay station and there boarded the New York express. They left several faithful employes in charge of Faulkner Farm.

Mr. and Mrs Brandegee will have a number of sailing companions with whom they are personally acquainted. Among those in the first cabin of the Berlin were the following Boston people: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulne, 2d, the Misses Ruth and Elisabeth Fulne, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bush of Longwood, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Crafts, Mrs. I. F. T. Edmonds, the Misses Grace and Marion E. Edmonds, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Foss, Miss Mary Russell Hodge, Miss Grace Nichols and Miss Mary Potter.

In Italy, Mrs. Brandegee will be met by her daughter, Miss Marion Syrageie. If Mrs. Brandegee's health permits the family will return home together in July.

The Black Hand threats began to arrive at Faulkner Farm several months ago. The last Black Hand letter arrived the first of this week. It was addressed to Mrs. Brandegee and threatened her life. Thoroughly unnerved, she decided to escape further annoyance by the Black Handers and preparations were made for the flight to Europe.

QUESTION 263

'CUSTOM MEN IN SMUGGLE HUNT

Chief John E. Wilkie of the United States Treasury Agents today began his investigations into the inside workings of the Boston Custom House, as a result of the revelations following the arrest of the late Bishop Potter, to Henry Fitch Taylor, the artist. Mr. Taylor's studio adjoins his bride's family home.

Chief John E. Wilkie of the United States Treasury Agents today began his investigations into the inside workings of the Boston Custom House, as a result of the revelations following the arrest of the late Bishop Potter, to Henry Fitch Terrence L. Sherlin, deputy collector of the port, and his wife, Mrs. Anna W. Sherlin, in connection with imports of millinery and gowns.

Each of the 263 men employed in the Boston Custom House will be interviewed by the treasury officers. They are working on information the government may have lost $5,000,000 in duties through a "sleeper trunk" system worked at various Atlantic ports and are anxious to ask customs employes for clews.

Many important developments are expected and a general shakeup in the customs service, not only in Boston, but in other large cities along the Atlantic coast, is rumored.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is coming to Boston on Monday and will probably take a hand in the investigation.

It was said today the questioning of the men in the customs department will probably take more than a week and the inquiry promises to be country-wide in its scope.

WILBUR THEATRE CONSTRUCTION TO BE STARTED SOON

Work on the Wilbur Theatre, Boston's new "little" theatre, and the third in the group of Wilbur houses in Tremont street, will be begun in a few days, following the signing of papers for the passing of two parcels of land at Tremont street and Du place from the City of Boston to the Wilbur Theatre Realty Trust.

The theatre is expected to be finished next October, and will be controlled by A. L. Wilbur, in association with the Shuberts. It will be constructed of dark-burned Harvard brick, with trimmings of white marble.

The Fuel of Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Love's a fire that needs renewal
Of fresh beauty for its fuel;
Love's wing moults when caged and captured,
Only free he soars enraptured."
THOMAS CAMPBELL.

THE question is asked many times, "Is a long engagement fair to the girls?"

It certainly is not. An engagement of more than a year's duration is as trying on love as six months of married life, and more fatal.

A man and his wife in such a short time as six months accumulate a community of interests. They have a home, and the home instinct is the greatest anchor love knows. There is the hope of a finally, the tie of their early wedded happiness; every self-denial the girl-wife makes has its reward in something tangible.

If she is disappointed, she conceals it in her pride. She was wooed and won, and is married to the man she loved. These facts stand out as if written in a splash of gold with which she would cover every disappointment.

The engaged girl has nothing to sustain her in the waiting period of a long engagement but love and hope, sturdy offsprings of her romance at the beginning, but they soon begin to weaken.

The days of their courtship were so ideal neither the man nor the woman sees a reason why they should not continue, and they become engaged with no immediate prospect of marrying.

Loves Him the More

At first the sense of proprietorship which an engagement gives the man, the joy of knowing that she is his, without the tormenting thought of paying for her material wants, makes his happiness complete. He spends his evenings with her, and his little bank account grows. On her part, with that feeling for a home which dominates every good girl, she works feverishly on dainty bits household accessories, putting in tiny little stitches with a prayer of thanksgiving that she has the privilege.

These she puts in what girls call a "hope box," and she begins to take more pride in her "hope box" than in her personal appearance.

She loves him all the more when he does without a new suit that he may add to his fund for their home; womanlike, she takes it for granted that he loves her just as much in last year's hat, knowing that the price of a new hat has increased, her store of household linen.

The economy never grows irksome to her, for the reason that woman's love grows on its opportunities for sacrifice and service, but it palls on him. He is neither married and enjoying a home, nor is he a free young man, at liberty to come and go and spend a dollar as he chooses.

It is easy for a man to make of himself a martyr. He begins to regard himself as eligible to the rewards of the early Christians because he gives up a ball game or a theatre that his cooking stove fund may grow.

Feels Sorry for Self

He feels sorry for himself, and the first torture of solidity a lover feels is the first of many stabs at the heart of the girl he loves.

He occasionally strays. The evenings when he is not with her are no longer his most weary hours; they have become his evenings off. He dines here and there, and the engagement of which he was at first so proud becomes something to conceal because of the hampering influence it would have on his relations with other girls.

The girl, with her head bent a little lower over her embroidering and hemstitching, continues to take such joy in anticipation of their future she doesn't see the face of the future has changed. She has grown older, and is losing the freshness of youth. When he takes her out he is conscious that she isn't as smartly attired as other girls. Man-like, he doesn't see the sacrifice he sees only the effect.

"Love's a fire that needs renewal of fresh beauty for its fuel." She has neglected the renewing of fuel in her certainty that his love was lasting, and realizes her folly only when the ashes are dead and cold.

The tie that binds a man to an engagement of marriage is as fragile as gossamer, and when it is broken it leaves him with no scars.

A girl is bound by a tie which her love makes a cable. To the end of her days she will bear on her heart marks of this painful lesson in man's fallibility when that engagement is broken.

Helen Is in the Room When Warren Turns Down a Questionable Business Deal

WARREN threw down his paper and strode over to answer the phone.

"Hello! ..... Who? ..... Mr. Haskell? ..... C. H. Haskell? Oh, yes! How are you? ..... Yes, I expect to be in all evening. ..... Glad to have you. ..... Yes ..... All right."

"Toast's funny," as he hung up the receiver with a puzzled frown. "Wonder what Haskell can want with me?"

"Who is he, dear?" with quick interest Helen looked up from her sewing.

"Why, he's one of the big corporation lawyers. I know him only slightly. Says he's coming to see me here in half an hour. Wonder what he's after."

"Coming here?" excitedly, starting up to straighten the room. "Why, dear, it may mean something wonderful! He may want you to go on some big case."

"Not likely. And somehow I've never quite trusted him. I know he's got a big reputation and all that—but he's one of the slick ones. Now see here, you stay right where you are and go on with your sewing. If he's got anything to propose he can't say before you—I don't want to hear it, that's all."

"Oh, then I must dress," nervously. "I can't let him see me like this."

"Why not? You look well enough."

But Helen, ignoring the comment, hurried to her room.

"Pick up your papers, dear," she called back. "And you're not going to receive him in that house coat, are you?"

"Like to know why. Guess he'll take me about as he finds me."

Helen was secretly impressed with Warren's careless indifference toward so prominent a man. Yet she put on her prettiest house gown with fluttering anticipations as to what Mr. Haskell's call might mean.

In a little while the bell rang and Mr. Haskell was announced.

"Ah, Haskell, glad to see you." Warren shook hands cordially. "Let me introduce you to Mrs. Curtis."

Large and Pompous

Mr. Haskell was a large and rather pompous man with an unmistakable air of prosperity.

"You've got a mighty nice place here, Curtis," with an appraising glance about.

Helen vaguely resented this remark, for she felt there was in it a note of obliged surprise and condescension, although he had not expected to find them living so well.

"Yes, we're pretty comfortable here," said Warren easily.

They talked on for a few moments of the number of good apartments being built in the neighborhood and of the increasing property values. Then Mr. Haskell meditatively shook the ashes from the cigar Warren had given him and said abruptly:

"Curtis, I've got some confidential business I can put your way. It means prompt action, so I came up to talk it over tonight."

Helen felt most awkward and self-conscious as she saw him glance toward her, but after what Warren had said she could not leave the room.

"Fire ahead," exclaimed Warren. "I don't have any secrets from my wife."

"Well," smiling oilily, "it'll be a pretty good thing for you if you put this over, so I don't suppose there will be any objections from her."

At this remark Helen's instinctive dislike for Mr. Haskell increased. She resented the use of the pronoun "her." If he had said, "I don't suppose there will be any objection from Mrs. Curtis" or "from your wife," it would not have grated so; but from "her" seemed some how to cheapen her.

He had drawn some papers from his pocket, which he now handed Warren with a brisk:

"Glance over these."

For the next few moments the only sound in the apartment was the rustle of the papers as Warren turned them and the occasional creaking of Mr. Haskell's chair as he moved his heavy weight.

"Well?" as Warren laid the papers down.

"That's all right, far as it goes."

"Now, the point is" (Mr. Haskell leaned forward confidentially), "that we want all this action taken as if you were representing disinterested parties. That's the reason why it can't be handled through our office."

"Oh, I see," mused Warren in a noncommittal tone.

"Now, I've been watching your work lately, and I've heard a good deal about you, and I think you're the man we want with us, but for the present at least, we don't want it known."

Warren Not Interested

Warren had taken up the papers again and was pondering over them. Then he asked a few technical questions which Helen could not understand, but from the tone of Mr. Haskell's explanation, she knew that he was on the defensive. At last Warren folded up the papers decisively and handed them back.

"Much obliged, Haskell; but I don't think it a cigar and scowled into space before him.

"Two thousand, then."

"No; I don't care to touch it."

"Now look here," and Haskell, pounded the table vigorously with his fist, "if you're an idea that there's more underneath this than shows on the surface, you're wrong. It's a straight deal, I tell you, and it's being done right along—and by the biggest firms too."

"I don't doubt that. Some of the big firms do some pretty crooked things nowadays."

"Well," with a shrug of his shoulders, "if you want to be quixotic and turn down a good thing—why that's your own look-out. You'll not get another chance like this in a hurry."

"And I don't know that I want one. See here, Haskell, you say you've heard a lot about me. So you probably know I'm pretty blamed independent. Now I've never touched any of that shady corporation work, and I don't intend to begin."

"Well of course that's for you to say," as Mr. Haskell gathered up the papers and put them in his pocket. "If I'd known you'd have taken it this way, I wouldn't have troubled you. But I suppose there's no harm done."

"Not a bit," agreed Warren.

Mr. Haskell had risen now and reached for his hat.

"I presume I can—can rely on you to treat this as confidential. Naturally I wouldn't—want"——

"I don't talk," snapped Warren grimly.

"Thank you. And—and Mrs. Curtis," turning to Helen, who flushed and rose in confusion, "you'll understand, I'm sure, that this was a purely business matter which I had intended to discuss only with your husband."

"Why, of course, Mr. Haskell," stammered Helen, "I—I wouldn't think of"——

"I don't talk, and I don't let my wife talk," broke in Warren curtly. I think you'd better stick out here."

Scowled Into Space

They went out in the hall now. Helen heard Mr. Haskell make some commonplace remark about it being pretty cold and having worn a heavy overcoat.

"Yes, we're making up for the cold weather we didn't get this Winter," answered Warren.

Then they moved on down the hall, and a moment later Helen heard the outer door open and close. Warren came back in frowning silence, threw himself in a chair, lit a cigar and scowled into space before him.

Helen drew up a low stool beside him. "Oh, dear, what was it? What did he want you to do? Tell me about it."

"Oh, some shady corporation work. A lot of it's going on all the time."

"And it wouldn't be legal?"

"Yes, I suppose it's legal. They'd get around some technicality and make anything legal. That's coo shrewd a bunch to ever get caught."

"Dear, you're wonderful!" crying to draw down his head to hers. "I can't tell you how proud I was of you when that man was here. You're so much finer and bigger and more honorable than he—any one could see that! Oh, I love you for not wanting to touch anything that wasn't quite straight. And when you refused his bribe—— For that was practically a bribe, wasn't it? Oh, dear, I do love you so for it all!"

"Oh, cut it!" shaking her off. "This isn't the third act of a play. It's rough enough to have to turn down a cool two thousand."

Then he threw his cigar stub in the ash tray, rose, yawned, stretched and started toward his room with a gruff:

"Now you wind the clock and shut cats out in the kitchen. I'm going to bed."

Household Suggestions

A very good way to make your stair carpet last longer, before laying the carpet (providing you do not possess proper pads), is to fold up some brown paper, or newspaper would do, five or six thicknesses not as wide as the carpet, and just lay it about six inches from the edge and a little over the edge, and secure it at each end with a tin tack. By doing this you will find your stair carpets will last a good deal longer.

Up Comes the Spider

Selected by EDWIN MARKHAM

J. HENRY FABRE, author of "Insect Life," has published a fascinating volume, "The Life of the Spider." The book has an introduction by Maurice Maeterlinck, whose own book, "The Bee," has also helped to further our friendship with these swift and silent little brothers working so marvellously all about us. Maeterlinck in his foreword introduces this spider book in this way:

"We open the book without zest and without unreasonable expectations, and forthwith from between the leaves there rises and unfolds itself, without hesitation, without interruption and almost without permission to the end of the 4,000 pages, the most extraordinary of tragic fairy plays that it is possible for the human imagination, not to create or to conceive, but to admit and to acclimatize within itself.

"The insect does not belong to our world. The other animals, the plants even, notwithstanding their dumb life and the great secrets which they cherish, do not seem wholly foreign to us. In spite of all, we feel a certain earthly brotherhood in them. They often surprise and amaze our intelligence, but do not utterly upset it.

"There is something, on the other hand, about the insect that does not seem to belong to the habits, the ethics, the psychology of our globe. One would be inclined to say that the insect comes from another planet, more monstrous, more energetic, more insane, more atrocious, more infernal than our own. One would think that it was born of some comet that had lost its course and died demented in space.

"In vain does it seize upon life with an authority, a fecundity unequalled elsewhere here below; we cannot accustom ourselves to the idea that it is a thought of that nature of whom we fondly believe ourselves to be the privileged children, and probably the ideal to which all the earth's efforts tend. Only the infinitely small disconcerts us still more greatly but what, in reality, is the infinitely small other than insect, which our eyes do not see?

"There is no doubt, in this astonishment and lack of understanding a certain instinctive and profound uneasiness inspired by those existences incomparably better armed, better equipped than our own, by those creatures made up of a sort of compressed energy and activity in whom we suspect our most mysterious adversaries, our ultimate rivals and, perhaps, our successors."

Fabre, generalising of the spider's work says: "Our methods of mathematical investigation are certainly ingenious; we cannot too much admire the mighty brain that have invented them, but how slow and laborious they appear when compared with the smallest actualities!

"Geometry—that is to say, the science of harmony in space—presides over everything. We find it in the arrangement of the scales of a fir cone, as in the arrangement of an Epeira's limesnare: we find it in the spiral of a snail-shell, in the chalice of a spider's thread, as in the orbit of a planet; it is everywhere, as perfect in the world of atoms as in the world of immensities.

"And this universal geometry tells us of a Universal Geometrician whose divine compass has measured all things."

President Wilson said: "This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication." Hood's Sarsaparilla long since had its day of dedication and now every day is one of triumph. It keeps on selling because it keeps on curing. It is made from just those remedies that physicians prescribe for impure blood, scrofula, eczema, that tired feeling. Thousands of letters prove its success with all these troubles and as a great Spring Medicine. This is the time to buy it.

RESINOL RELIEVED ITCHING AT ONCE

And Completely Cured Skin Humor.

If you have eczema or any other itching, burning skin trouble, the best evidence of what Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment can do for you is the word of one who was cured by them after weeks of suffering. Adolph Schoen, 742 Shepherd ave., Brooklyn, writes:

Nov. 1, 1912.—"At first little red spots were seen on my arms and body, which I noticed were getting larger every day. They itched me so much that I scratched myself until I bled. There were times when I stood up all night and scratched. I was troubled about three weeks, during which time I used remedies which seemed to do me no good whatever. Then, finally, I thought of trying Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. As soon as I applied Resinol Ointment I felt much relief. After using it a few times, I noticed the sore spots slowly fading away, and in about a month I was cured completely.

"The soothing, healing balsams in Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap penetrate every tiny part of the skin, clearing it of all impurities, driving away eczema, rashes, ringworms, psoriasis and other eruptions, and making pimples and blackheads impossible. Prescribed by physicians for eighteen years. For free samples write to Dept. 19-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap.

FROM each tea plant in the garden of Formosa, the leaves are picked several times a year.

Once only, the leaves are at their best, tender and fragrant, full of the wonderful lilac flavor.

Our experts wait for that picking. Those are the delicate leaves we place so carefully in our air-tight canisters of Formosa Ooloong.

Such tea was almost unknown at American tea-tables before we brought it here.

M'CARTHY HITS O'MEARA OVER SEARCH BILL

Representative John F. McCarthy, father of the bill providing for the examination of prisoners brought into a police station, says the bill does not mean that women may be subjected to unseemly examination by police officers.

He says the bill was designed to eradicate the cruelty shown prisoners by the police.

He charges Police Commissioner O'Meara does not know what is going on at police stations and that Superintendent Pierce is the real commissioner.

Representative McCarthy said:

The implication that woman may be subjected to an unseemly examination by the police is preposterous. In the first place if the examination of a woman is necessary there is always a matron within reach of a station. In the second place no such examination as that proposed by Police Commissioner O'Meara would be made except in extreme cases.

What we want to know is the physical condition of a prisoner when brought in a police station so far as a reasonable examination may show it. If a rigid examination seems to be necessary that too should be made. But nobody ever dreamed that the suggestion would be made by a police official of an examination that would make necessary the entire stripping of clothes from the body of a prisoner.

There would have been no need of this legislation if we had a police commissioner who knew what was going on in police stations.

Mr. O'Meara does not know, for he rarely, if ever, visits them. He has little personal knowledge of men who are beaten and crippled after arrest. The real police commissioner is Superintendent Pierce.

LINER BOHEMIAN IN AFTER BATTLING WITH MANY STORMS

After a voyage in which almost every adventure from running into meteoric storms to picking up derelict ships was encountered, the Leyland Liner Bohemian was brought into port by Captain E. C. Illsley, the liner left Portland on March 13 in a rain storm. Hurricanes, hail, sleet and snow were encountered. On March 20 a mechanical fault of the steering gear left the dark ship like an incandescent light, crossed the bows of the ship from north to south and burst not far away from the port side with a report like a gun. The fragments scattered in all directions and sank hissing into the sea.

On the 25th the liner met the Cayo Romano, wallowing helpless in the heavy sea, having lost her propeller. A cable sent aboard the Bohemian and she was towed to Halifax. The ship means rich salvage for the crew of the Bohemian.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Stock markets continued strong today and after opening irregular the price tendency took an upward turn and held to it.

In the New York market sixteen leading stocks averaged at the close ¾ higher than at the end of trading yesterday.

In the Boston market coppers as a class were much stronger. While gains were fractional as a rule, there were exceptions. Hancock rose two points.

Among stocks to make good gains in New York were American Can and St. Paul, up 1¼ each, Reading 1¼ and Union Pacific 1⅛. There was big buying of Reading, while Amalgamated, Steel and Union Pacific were also in strong demand. For Saturday, trading was unusually active. In the two hours' session share transactions totaled nearly 300,000.

The New York bank statement reads: Average statement—Excess cash reserve $15,836,350, increase $3,849,690; loans, decrease, $5,356,000; specie, increase, $340,000; legal tenders, increase, $329,000; net deposits, decrease, $5,896,000; circulation, increase, $.2,000. Actual—Excess Loans, increase, $14,618,000; specie, increase, $7,908,000; legal tenders, decrease, $940,000; net deposits, decrease, $21,548,000; reserve, increase, $2,202,400.

New York Uncertain at Start.

There was an uncertain tone to the New York market at the opening, but as a result of the first half hour a number of the important issues developed strength and made substantial gains.

Lehigh Valley was prominent, opening at 156¾, 1¼ points above yesterday's close. Reading opened unchanged, but a vigorous demand appeared and that issue rose ⅝ to 166½. Gains ranging around ½ were recorded in Union Pacific, Amalgamated, American Locomotive, Atchison, Pennsylvania, Chino Copper, Utah Copper and Anconda. A number of the minor copper shares moved to new high prices for them.

Canadian Pacific opened at 234, a point below the previous close, and later rallied. Early price changes were confined to small fractions.

The Curb market was quiet and easy.

London Market Was Sluggish.

The London market was sluggish and price movements were confused. Attendances at the Exchange was too small to provide much business. Consols were weaker. There was an early advance in American stocks, but towards the close of the market they became reactionary. This was attributed to Berlin operations. Mexican Pacific was quoted unchanged affected. Continental bourses closed irregular.

Government Report on Cotton Seed.

A report issued at Washington by the United States Bureau of Statistics today states that 4,540,905 tons of cotton seed were crushed and 615,704 bales of linters were obtained from the 11,901,000 tons compared with 4,021,073 tons of seed and 536,276 bales of linters obtained from the 1911 crop.

Bank Merger Story Denied.

President Thayer of the Merchants National Bank says that the statement that his institution will combine with the Bank of Commerce is fiction. He says he has not seen Colonel Hallowell for months. Any further rumors of a consolidation between my bank and the Bank of Commerce are true.

Colonel N. P. Hallowell says there is no truth in the consolidation story.

Fear a Steel Famine.

It is said by steel and iron men in Pittsburg that a steel famine may result from the flood, as seventy out of eighty steel mills within a radius of 100 miles of that city have been closed. Others cannot be supplied with coal for the plants, it is said, in fact, that more than 50 per cent. of the steel making capacity of the Pittsburg district of Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois is idle.

Estimates place the average idleness of these plants at about three weeks. Some of the Ohio plants are practically wrecked.

These weeks' idleness of the steel mills means some means a loss of 1,000,000 tons of pig iron, which, at the present selling prices, would be valued at the furnace at $15,000,000.

Approximately 200,000 men are out of work in the iron and steel industry.

President's Tariff Message.

The message which President Wilson will send to Congress when it convenes in special session on April 7 concerns only the tariff and consists of only about 1,200 words. The following statements are made in the message:

"It is not drastic nor revolutionary, but it insists on immediate action on the items of tariff and on revision downward.

"The President will legislation recommending that schedules which have been employed to destroyed competition be revised. He says, it is generally admitted by the people to Congress that the favors a gradual reduction of these schedules.

"He is sensible that big cuts would upset business, and this he does not desire.

"He will, it is understood, lay stress upon the fact that under our present system of taxation the government collects more than the expenses of the country. It is his belief that under the new system of taxation many articles is prohibitive.

"His studies of the tariff have led him to compare costs in this country, in the free trade country, and in the United States, Canada, Scandinavia comparable to those of Canada, he thinks, are sufficient for this country. His recommendation to Congress will be along that line.

"The message is not going to be specific. It will not recommend free wool or free coal, or free sugar. Details of the bill or bills will be left to Congress. Mr. Wilson took the wise precaution to find out what congressional action he was likely to get before he made a recommendation."

Financial News in Brief.

The following regular quarterly dividends have been declared: Reece Button Hole Machine Company 3 per cent; International Button Hole Sewing Machine Company, 1 per cent., and Reece Folding Machine Company, 1 per cent. The International also declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent. All these dividends are payable April 15 to stock of record April 5.

Canadian Pacific gross earnings increased $815,778 in February, and the gain in net was $136,263. Increases in gross and net for the $14,120,490 gross and $3,376,624 net. For February the gross increase was $157,602 and operating expenses $117,824, resulting in a decrease of $34,214 in net operating revenue.

The Reading company for February reports net earnings of all companies $1,978,618, compared with $1,782,403 last year, after allowing for fixed charges there was a surplus of $1,126,618, compared with $932,951.

Commercial failures this week in the United States, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., are 248, against 294 last week, 306 the preceding week, and .292 the corresponding week last year.

In speaking of the attitude of legislators toward railroads, President Truesdale of the Lackawanna road said: "There is no mistaking the trend of affairs. It is steadily, persistent and continuous for the absolute control of all the activities of the railways of the country by government, national and State, stopping only at responsibility to the owners of them for their financial outcome."

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has suspended the order of his immediate predecessor, changing the size and design of all paper money. The Secretary favors smaller-sized currency, but will authorize no change until Congress acts on currency legislation.

Stops Tobacco Habit in One Day

Sanitarium Publishes Free Book Showing How Tobacco Habit Can Be Banished in from One to Three Days at Home.

The Elders Sanitarium, located at 685 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a free book explaining a plan for the cure of the tobacco habit, and how it can be banished in from one to three days at home.

Men who have used tobacco for more than fifty years have tried this method and say it is explicit, harmless and sure. In addition to banishing the desire for tobacco, the remedy clears the blood of nicotine fully. This method banishes the desire for tobacco, no matter whether a user is smoking, chewing, cigarettes or snuff dipping.

As this book is being distributed free, those wishing a copy should send their name and address at once.

WARD 19 CALLS MASS MEETING ON 'L' SERVICE

A mass meeting of the residents of Ward 19 and Roxbury district has been called for Thursday to act on resolutions offered by the Ward 19 Democratic Club, protesting against the service given that district by the Boston Elevated Railway Company.

The resolutions protest against the diverting of cars from Tremont street and Columbus avenue to the Elevated, through Dudley street, and ask that the service be restored as formerly.

The committee receiving a copy of the resolutions of three be appointed to bring the matter to the attention of the Massachusetts Railway Commission.

The meeting is arranged by the Ward 19 club some North Station cars from Roxbury that had been taken off have been restored. The club has gone on record and has notified the Mayor that it is opposed to any city employe receiving an increase of more than $1,500 per year, until the city laborers receive $2.50 per day and their positions are placed on a permanent basis.

IRISH PLAYERS SCORE AGAIN AT THE PLYMOUTH

Yeats' "weird play" the "Countess Cathleen," and Bernard Shaw's "Showing up of Blanco Posnet," followed each other last night at the Plymouth Theatre with the Irish players as the entertainers.

The work of those actors, men and women, continues on a plane of high artistic merit. Indeed the more one sees of such acting the stronger grows the hope that some day in America there will arise a body of native actors whose character interpretation shall be as unaffected and as unstilted as are these young impersonators who have come to us for the second time from across the ocean.

Sara Allgood holds strong to the laurels she won on Monday as the first night of her appearance here last season. So do Mona O'Beirne and O'Rourke and O'Donovan, all of whom are hour actors of the finished class. Any company owning such as they in its ranks might well appeal for popular support no matter what their roles.

The evening the bill will include "Riders to the Sea," "The Hour of Heart's Desire" and "Spreading the News."

Kansas City Doctor Treats This Disease With Unusual Success.

Sends a Large 16-oz. Bottle Free to All Sufferers Who Write Him.

The remarkable success which F. E. Grant, a physician located at 753 Raymond Building, Kansas City, Mo., is having in the treatment of Epilepsy, Fits or Falling Sickness is attracting wide attention. To test his treatment the doctor sent some of it to people who had been suffering for years, and to their delight they found relief from even the first dose.

Dr. Grant is anxious to help every one afflicted with this dreadful disease. He sends a large 16-oz. bottle to any sufferer who will write him, giving name, age and express office. If you have this disease write him at once.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON MARCH 29, 1913

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MARCH 29, 1913.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

A Tax Laid by Humanity Upon the Readers of This Newspaper

The Boston AMERICAN desires to levy a tax of one dollar in the name of humanity upon every reader of this newspaper.

The appeal for the sufferers by flood and fire and tornado in the West and Middle West has been spread far and wide.

It lies now in the heart of every human being who can read or hear the story of human suffering that is told day by day in the dispatches from Ohio, Indiana and Nebraska.

No such disaster has ever strained the sympathies of the American people. Neither Johnstown nor Galveston nor even San Francisco has covered greater scope of suffering and sadder menace of suffering yet to come.

The Boston AMERICAN gladly undertakes to gather a special fund of its own for the relief of these stricken Americans.

Mr. Hearst starts this fund with $1,000.

This does not mean that other men need meet this example. This appeal is to our readers—all our readers.

ONE DOLLAR from each of them will make a fund that will be greater than all other funds sent westward on its mission of relief.

The American public knows from past experiences that when this newspaper undertakes a charity those who subscribe to it are putting their money to its most effectual uses. Every effort of utmost painstaking will be spent by the AMERICAN in seeing that this flood fund shall go dollar by dollar where it will do the most good.

The flood has reached its high-water mark, and is receding in most of the places of greatest peril; but it is questionable whether the high tide of misery and pain has yet been reached.

Every man or woman in Boston whose heart has been stirred by the tales of the pitiless violence of this vast assault of nature upon the homes of men; every man or woman who is capable of feeling, by the power of sympathy, the sudden and hideous bereavements, the cold, the hunger, the sickness, the desolation of spirit that have fallen upon the valleys of death in Ohio and elsewhere will wish to make some voluntary sacrifice to mitigate the bitterness of this enormous misery.

Everybody will WISH to give—to give a dollar at least. Is it too much to hope that every reader of the AMERICAN who is not himself sunk in misery and destitution will be glad to turn that wish into an act of will?

The AMERICAN invites you who read this to seize your opportunity of bearing a share of the national loss and burden by mailing or carrying your contribution in person and WITHOUT DELAY, TODAY, THIS HOUR IF POSSIBLE, to the office of the Boston AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street.

The People Don't Intend That the Railroads Shall Rob Them

The People to Be Honest Must Not Permit Legislation That Would Rob the Railroads

To Discourage Railroad Building and Railroad Improvement by Haphazard Legislation Is Just as Foolish and Dishonest as to Rob the People by Railroad Overcharges and Reckless Capitalization.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

The disastrous floods throughout the country have cost the railroads in all probability not less than fifty millions of dollars.

This is a good time to remind ardent and enthusiastic lawmakers that it is just as dishonest to rob the railroads through unreasonable legislation or the imposition of unreasonable, unnecessary conditions, as it is for the railroads to rob the public through extortionate rates or dishonest capitalization.

We call attention to legislation proposed in New York State and a new law in New Jersey—in both cases unfair to the railroads, discouraging to further railroad building, AND THEREFORE UNFAIR AND HARMFUL TO THE PUBLIC.

The country needs railroads as much as it needs highways, and even more.

The railroads should be compelled to treat all alike, and fairly. And THEY, in their turn, should have fair treatment.

Since 1907 it has been almost impossible for legitimate railroad enterprises to get money for their necessary extensions, improvements and developments.

Now comes this great calamity involving losses of tens of millions at a time when the railroads are in difficulties and subject to attack, some of it wise and a good deal of it foolish.

The public may as well understand that moderation in railroad legislation will bring good results, and unreasonable legislation will defeat itself and make conditions worse than they have ever been.

The railroad is simply an organization like any other necessary to the public, and managed on the whole as well as any other, by about the same kind of men as are engaged in other business.

You cannot have on the one hand public service commissions and legislatures, compelling the railroads to reduce their rates, their freight charges and their commutation rates, and on the other hand organizations of labor, or arbitrators appointed by the Government, telling the railroads that they must raise wages and employ more men.

You can't cut down the freight rate at one end and raise wages at the other without wiping out the railroads.

It is a good thing to raise wages when that can be done. IT IS THE BEST POSSIBLE THING FOR THE COUNTRY.

It is a good thing to reduce freight rates and passenger rates when that can be done—a good thing for the country and a very good thing for the railroads, which always prosper under low rates if they are fair.

But not only wage earners, passengers and shippers, BUT ALSO RAILROADS must be considered.

This newspaper has done as much as any other to point out and attack unjust and illegal action by railroads.

We propose to point out, when there is need of it, unjust action, or attempted action, through legislation AGAINST RAILROADS.

We refer today to the bill introduced in the Legislature of New York known as the "Full Crew Bill," and to a new law in New Jersey, compelling the railroads to abolish ALL grade crossings entirely at their own expense.

The New York "Full Crew Bill" would compel the railroads of New York arbitrarily to increase the number of men that they employ on trains—regardless of conditions, grades, equipment and everything else.

The increased cost for managing the railroads under the increased crews would be two millions of dollars a year.

If the extra men were necessary to insure safety or to prevent overwork of men now employed, they ought to be hired.

If they are unnecessary from the point of view of safety, as is alleged, and if they would not relieve undue strain upon the train crews, to hire them IS A CRIME.

This legislation, if carried through, would compel the spending of two millions a year by the railroads of that State—that is to say, interest on forty millions of dollars.

And, what is more important, it would put two thousand men to doing work that is unnecessary.

The maniac who murdered the King of Greece the other day said that he hoped to help bring forward the day when an hour's work would be spread over two hours, so as to help poor men.

That is the philosophy of anarchists and idiots.

What the people want is to enable one man without any greater effort to do TWO hours work in ONE hour—and have the other hour to himself, and be better paid for THE ONE hour.

To put two thousand men unnecessarily to work on railroads would be to waste the labor of two thousand men, and to interfere probably with those usefully at work.

Unfortunately, labor unions have been guilty of advocating legislation of this kind, believing that it would help labor, whereas it actually hurts the workingman as much as it hurts the railroads.

Legislators who think that they are going to help themselves or help the country by putting men to work uselessly and wasting man's time are stupid and need to be reminded of that fact.

Legislation which treats railroads unfairly is that which became a law in New Jersey.

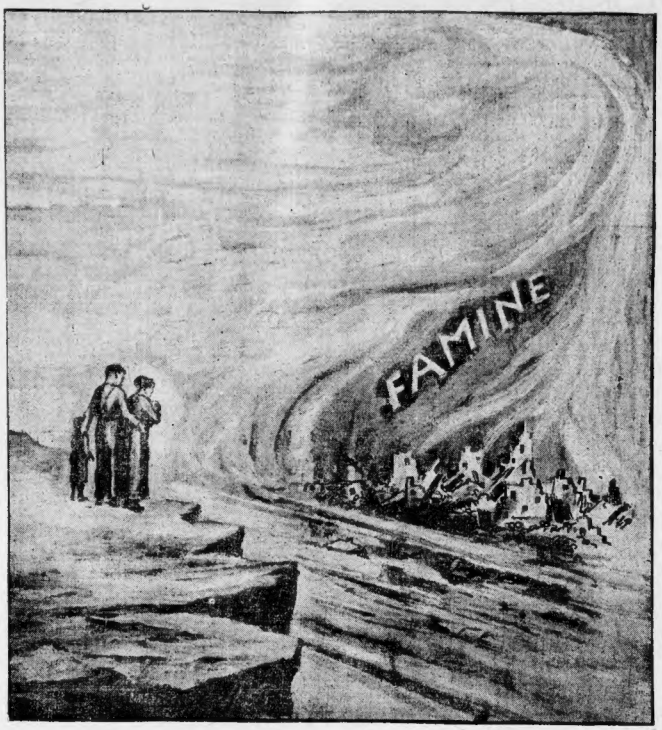
When President Wilson was Governor of New Jersey he vetoed legislation that was moderate and reasonable and that should have been signed.

It was legislation for the gradual abolition of railroad crossings in the State and for apportionment of the costs between the railroads and the State.

The new law which President Wilson properly protests on behalf of his stockholders compels the railroads in New Jersey to abolish ALL grade crossings and to pay the TOTAL expense.

The people who compel the railroads to abolish these crossings should share in the expense. A railroad is entitled to treatment as fair as that to which the individual is entitled. The people are powerful. They should first realize their power, then use it honestly and moderately.

After the Storm



Fire, Famine and Poverty. But the cities will rebuild and the stricken men and women will refuse to give in to disaster.

Make Transfer from Subway to South Station Cars Less Hazardous

The officials of the Boston Elevated Railway Company have declared that they will welcome any suggestions for the improvement of their service. Good.

For a beginning, let them make the transfer of passengers, bound to and fro between the Back Bay and the South Station, less disagreeable and hazardous. At present, one is obliged to climb the stairs of the Boylston street station and cross a street cumbered by a heavy traffic, made especially dangerous by the presence of motor cars approaching from four different directions. The crossing is difficult for a man; it is perilous for a woman. Furthermore, the discomfort and danger increase in inclement weather.

The AMERICAN respectfully suggests, therefore, a line of cars from Boylston and Church streets, transferring passengers from the subway cars at the natural transfer point just outside the subway entrance, and running via Park square to the South Station. What could be more simple and logical, pending an underground connection?

EVERY individual would be benefited by fasting one day out of each seven.

If we believed that the command to labor six days and rest the seventh was given to the digestive organs as well as to the limbs and brain, the world would contain fewer invalids.

If we understood the command, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," applied to the appetites as well as to the religious ideals, much misery might be saved us.

Scores of people place stimulants and foods so prominently in the foreground that God is hidden from view.

A woman who believed herself religious declared she would rather die at once than live on earth if she must give up what she liked to eat and drink and take to a diet of any kind.

Coffee was her little god; and she found no interest in a day if she was deprived of her beverage.

The moment we depend on any one thing to eat or drink, as an absolute necessity to our happiness and comfort, we are on the road to ill-health.

It is not a normal condition.

And it is not a dignified position for a sane, grown, educated, wholesome-minded man or woman.

To be the slave of anything is to prove we are not masters. And man was meant to be master of himself and of his environment.

We all need food and drink to sustain life; but the moment we need ONE ARTICLE OF FOOD OR ONE SPECIAL DRINK in order to feel well or be happy, we are slaves of a habit, and should take ourselves in hand. Therefore, it is good to take a fast now and then, to prove to ourselves we are not such slaves, and to make ourselves masters of our own appetites.

Man Was Meant to Be Master of Himself and His Environment

A friend writes of his inability to enjoy life because of his digestive troubles.

This friend has been always most self-indulgent; he has taken stimulants to give him an appetite, and spiced and savory dishes to satiate the appetite. And now he is paying the penalty.

Here is a recipe for a simple method of home cure; yet it is doubtful if this slave to his appetites will have the strength of character to put it to the test.

Fast wholly for two days; drinking a glass of hot water in the morning and a glass of moderately cold water (not iced) every hour.

The fast will not be difficult. Many people have pursued their usual avocations during longer fasts, and felt no weakness or other annoyance.

The third morning substitute a glass of half and half hot milk and water. And during the day drink three more glasses.

The fourth day take two raw eggs, and drink the hot milk and water at intervals.

The fifth day drink two quarts of milk, and take the raw eggs if there is a desire for more nourishment.

The sixth day repeat the diet, and on the seventh all physical ills will be memories, unless there is a more serious condition which needs a three or four weeks' continuance of milk diet. In that case it is well to go into a milk sanitarium.

To live entirely for a few days on any plain food, and to drink a quantity of water at intervals, will act as a cure to numerous maladies. But the slave of his appetites must first become master.

The Whirling Earth Spins a Deep Cup at the North Pole, a Button at the South

THE earth whirls around an invisible axis, one end of which turns the deep cup of the Arctic Ocean, while the other spins the huge white button of the Antarctic Continent.

In the north the ice floats on the sea, like a moving floor. In the south it rests, like a bossy shield on a vast dome of uplifted rock.

Close around the edges of the ice-world, both north and south, and even within it, animals and plants are found living. But in their species these inhabitants of the opposite poles are as different as the poles themselves.

On and around the Antarctic Continent there are several species of birds, notably albatrosses, petrels, and the strange upright-walking penguins, with their black coats, white waistcoats, and ludicrously polite bearing. There are also whales and seals, but the human form is absent, except so far as it is mimicked, to the eye of fancy, by the stately penguins. The plants are scanty in number, although some bear flowers, and, in the absence of human companions, they have no native names.

Within the Arctic Circle the scene is more animated. There are many Arctic plants, some bearing brilliant flowers. Yellow buttercups and Arctic poppies warm the heart of the explorer.

The saxifrage puts out its starry blossoms within seven and a half degrees of the pole. There are so many other species that a very attractive bouquet of Arctic flowers may be formed. Some of these are exquisite in color and form. The animal life of the Arctic is also relatively abundant. In the sea is the world-circling whale, the walrus with his curious tusks and various species of seals. On the land and snow, and sometimes on the ice-packs, are large and remarkable animals, often in abundance. The great polar bear alone would suffice to make the lands that he tenants famous. Then there are reindeer, musk oxen, foxes, wolves, hares and lemmings. Among birds are grouse, ptarmigans, snow buntings, falcons, puffins and auks. But man is there, too, in the person of the hut-dwelling, fur-clothed, fish-spearing Eskimo.

The reason why the life around the two poles is so different, and so contrasted in its forms, is probably to be found in the climatic differences, which, in turn, are governed by the elevation. The sea life is similar in both cases—whales and seals are the characteristic animals that inhabit the polar waters. But the great elevation of the Antarctic Continent, with its eternal burden of snow and ice, thousands of feet in thickness, continually sending down immeasurable glaciers that form vast platforms of thick ice all around the borders of the continent, keeps the mean temperature at a low level, and drives life away from the snow-buried land. A great anti-cyclone occupies the atmosphere over the South Pole, and manufacturers snow and ice without limit. As the burden piles higher at the centre it pushes outward on all sides, down the slopes of the continent, until it reaches the bordering sea.

But things have not always been thus. The recent explorers of the Antarctic have found remains of ancient life, recalling the life of the temperate zones and the tropics.
